'I Was in Love . . . Totally, Helplessly'

One day, as Corinne and I were sitting on the porch, I saw Henry Mustin rounding the corner, deep in conversation with a young officer and followed closely by two more. As they drew closer my eyes came to rest on the officer directly behind Captain Mustin.

He was laughing, yet there was a suggestion of inner force and vitality that struck me. His close-cropped hair and a man's moustache gave an arresting boldness to his features.

A moment later they were on the porch and Henry Mustin was saying: "I want you to meet Lieutenant Spencer."

The talk at lunch was mostly about flying, and I was fascinated. Lieutenant Spencer's gaiety and sense of fun were continually in play, though a certain undertone of sarcasm hinted at harsher forces working beneath the surface.

The eyes were surprisingly intense and bright and quick to flash in response to a quip.

I Knew I Was Hopelessly in Love

I felt excited and moved as I had never been before. Here was a kind of man new to me, strong, assured, sophisticated—one who knew what he wanted and was confident of his ability to get it.

The following day he came back to dine. By the end of the evening I knew I was in love completely, totally, helplessly.

Earl Winfield Spencer was 26 when we fell in love. He was a senior instructor and a key man in the naval air program, then just beginning to feel the quickening influence of the approach of war.

The more I saw of him the more certain I was that this was the real thing. Sometimes doubts did assail me, and I tried to put on the brakes. But it was no use.

Then one evening Win led me on to the country club porch and asked me to marry him.

In the course of the next fortnight I came to know, if not everything about him, at least a great deal. Deeply imbedded in his nature, under the surface layer of gaiety, was a strange brooding quality that verged on bitterness and even cynicism: a word or gesture could change his manner in a flash.

The laughter that crinkled the lines around his dark eyes would be gone as if a blind had been drawn across his mind; he would become silent and morose. These strange and sometimes bewildering alternations of mood fascinated me even more than his undoubted good looks.

Lost in the perfume of the oleanders and azaleas, I was too inexperienced to realize that the shut-in, bitter side of Win Spencer's nature was the stronger side; that even then he was struggling to hold it in check.

In the years to come it would gain the ascendancy and destroy him and also the life we tried to make together.

Little though I suspected it then, his was to prove to be an even more ill-starred family than the Montagues.

Share prices drove ahead as much as $4 today as New York and Toronto stock exchanges made one of their strongest showings of the year.

The rally snapped off a downward trend that had ruled for more than three weeks, climaxed last week by a 15-point slide, biggest drop in 25 years in the Wall Street industrial index.

HOW HOT IS HOT ENOUGH?

Victoria residents will be permitted to ask the age-old question "is it hot enough for you?" today and Wednesday, according to the official forecast.

On Gonzales Hill, the temperature is expected to reach 75 or better. On downtown pavements, radiation will raise the mercury above 80.

Sunny, warm weather seems certain to continue for the next few days. May so far has chalked up 307.4 hours of sunshine, and a daily average of 10 hours for the balance of the month will set a new record.

Senate to Give Pipe Loan Bill Fast Passage

Government Leader Sees 'No Delay'

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's pipeline bill which has ignited the Commons into fiery debate may find more tranquil passage in the Senate.

Senator W. Ross Macdonald, government leader in the Senate, said in an interview Monday he anticipates there will be some debate on the $30,000,000 measure, "but no delay."

Senator John T. Halg, Senate opposition leader, said he personally will oppose the bill and that he expects two or three of his colleagues to support him.

But there will not be enough opposition, he said, to prevent the bill from going through in two or three days.

Closure action to end debate by Saturday on all stages of the pipelines loan bill was expected in the Commons this afternoon.

CONCILIATORY

Rt. Hon. C. D. Howe was scheduled to be the first speaker. He was still speaking, in conciliatory vein, when the House adjourned at 10 o'clock last night.

The stage, therefore, is set for the government to give notice today to invoke closure, if it so desires.

Prime Minister St. Laurent Monday offered the opposition five days of debate on all remaining stages of passing the legislation through the House.

But his "olive branch" was rejected in another flare-up vigorously condemning the government's curbing of debate.

Last night Trade Minister Howe also tried to pour oil on troubled waters. He spoke quietly and in conciliatory vein.

OVER-ENTHUSIASTIC

Mr. Howe in his most appealing manner said: "Now, why are we pressing on? Why are we pressing this? Well, I do not know. Perhaps I get over-enthusiastic about a project. I have been working on sizeable projects all my life and somehow I reach a point in the development when I think that a project is important. If it is a serious enough project, I begin to think it is the most important thing in the world—and it does seem to me that it is important that we do not lose a year in undertaking this pipeline."

The galleries were packed throughout the afternoon and evening.

IS THIS WHERE HE GOT GUN?

Hold-up "victim" Bob Gillett stands with target pistol of type held on him by odd stick-up man Monday night. Gillett and girl friend, Margaret Ross, visit broken sporting goods store window from which smash-and-grab artist stole revolvers. Gunman seemed familiar with weapon, Gillett said.

B and K Canada Visit Reported in Offing

LONDON (CP)—The Daily Mail says in a New York dispatch that Russia's Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin are planning to make an official visit to Canada.

The dispatch says the Russian leaders are "known to be anxious" to visit the United States, and implies that an official visit to Canada, which would be covered by American newspapers, radio and television, would be a suitable opening gambit. The U.S. is thought to be reluctant to extend an invitation at this time.

OTTAWA (CP)—The external affairs department said today the government is not considering inviting Russia's Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin to visit Canada at this time.

An official also said the government has received no suggestion that the Russians are planning a trip to Canada.

Conrad Golf Leader

TROON, Scotland (AP)—Defending champion Joe Conrad of San Antonio, Tex., led the way into the fourth round of the British amateur golf championship today with a 3 and 2 victory over Tom Anderson of Scotland.

TWO LIGHTERS NEEDED TO AMMUNITION SHIPS

OTTAWA (CP)—Bad weather on six occasions during the last six months has forced suspension of ammunition loading or unloading at the Rocky Point naval magazine at Esquimalt, the defence department says in a Commons return.

In reply to questions by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC (PC, Esquimalt-Saanich), the department said two lighters are used to load or unload ammunition from the four types of naval vessels which use the magazine. The ships do not load directly from the Rocky Point jetty, built at a cost of $234,421. The jetty is 216 feet long and 50 feet wide.

The return adds that the lighters cannot remain at Rocky Point in all weather. It is eight miles by sea between Rocky Point and Esquimalt.

Former Beria Stooges Executed for Treason

MOSCOW (AP)—The former prime minister of Azerbaijan and three other top officials of that Caucasian Republic have been executed for treason and counter-revolutionary activity.

They were accused of being accomplices of former Soviet police boss Lavrenti Beria.

The newspaper Baku Worker, which reached Moscow today, said they had been charged with "terroristic acts."

The chief defendant in the trial, which the newspaper said was held publicly in Baku between April 12 and April 26, was identified as M. D. Bagalov, former secretary of the Communist party in that area and the chairman of the council of ministers August, 1953, a month after Beria was purged. He had been secretary of the Communist Party since 1947.

The other three men who were executed were M. D. Barshchev, H. I. Grigoryan and R. A. Markaryan.

The two who were imprisoned were S. S. Ibragimovich, a former vice commissar of state security, and S. Emelyanov, a former people's commissar for state security in Azerbaijan.

The indictment said he and his accomplices were guilty of treason, of using improper methods of police investigation,

'Screwball' Stickup Scares Saanich Pair

A city soft drink salesman and his girl friend were held at gun-point early this morning by a strangely-acting, unshaven man who may have been responsible for an earlier theft of four weapons from a Broad Street sporting goods store.

Victims of the weird incident were Bob Gillett, 22, 143 Medina, and Margaret Ross, 18, 3811 Cedar Hill Road.

They were sitting in a car outside Miss Ross' home when the gun-wielding took place.

The gunman asked for nothing, took nothing and finally drove away in a small car thought to have been of English make.

Earlier, about 12:25 a.m., someone smashed a plate glass window at Robinson's Sporting Goods, 1307 Broad, and stole a French automatic pistol and two .22 calibre revolvers are missing, and possibly a rifle.

The break-in occurred at 12:25 a.m.

Both city and Saanich police were investigating what was termed a "screwball" stickup and the possible connection with the smash-and-grab theft downtown.

City police chief John Blackstock said: "I've told dealers they should lock up their revolvers at night. The window is no place for them."

Possibility that the wanted man is a psychopath spurred the hunt.

He and Miss Ross had just driven up to the latter's home and were sitting in the car when they noticed a small car approaching from the rear drive past and stop less than 100 yards ahead of Gillett's car.

He said he noticed it particularly because he saw the red stop lights go on, then go out as the car pulled ahead a few feet more so that it appeared parked outside the next address.

He Turned His Lights Out

"Then he turned his lights out, and it was quite a spell before he got out. He seemed undecided where he was parking. That's the first thing I noticed," Gillett recalled.

The driver had a flashlight which he shone on the ground as he stepped out of the car. "This man walked toward us and I got out of the car to see what he wanted. He pulled a pistol out of his belt and pointed it toward us."

"He told me to freeze, and I froze naturally."

"I thought he was going to strip the car because he walked toward it. He had the flashlight in my eyes all the time."

"Margaret said he never took his eyes off me. I don't know whether he saw her or not."

Both had a good look at the heavy-set man. A street light illuminated his features and the gun he held. The couple said they could identify the man and the gun if they saw them again.

"He asked me my name and I told him. I was afraid he would ask me for money. I only had two cents. That's why I was afraid."

"He went over to the door of the car and stood a minute, still looking at me and pointing the gun. Margaret was in the driver's seat and she was closer to him than I was."

"I was never so scared," she confessed.

"Then he said: 'Get back in the car and carry on.' I got in and after a short time he went back to his car and drove off," Gillett went on.

"He turned right on Ruby and went down towards Shelbourne. I made sure he was gone and phoned Saanich police."

Gillett said the hold-up man seemed to be eccentric. He didn't look right in his eyes—like he didn't know whether to pull the trigger or not."

He described the man as "close to six feet" in height, about 24 years of age and weighing about 200 pounds.

The man's face was full and chunky, and he needed a shave. His hair was short and dark and he wore a light shirt with dark trousers.

RAINCOATS, UMBRELLAS SOLD OUT

Japan Fears National Panic From Radioactivity Neurosis

TOKYO (Reuters)—The national newspaper Asahi says the Japanese people have developed a "radioactivity neurosis" following an unconfirmed report that the United States exploded another hydrogen bomb in the Pacific Sunday.

Many local health officers issued public statements warning that panic could result in mental breakdowns. Store owners reported they are nearly sold out of raincoats and umbrellas.

A Tokyo observatory spokesman stuck to his guns today, saying that the U.S. definitely tested a hydrogen weapon at Bikini atoll May 27. Despite American silence on the matter, weather data indicated an explosion had taken place, he said. The last officially reported test was May 21.

Asahi says that, contrary to local expectations, no tangible fall-out from the May 21 test has been noted in Japan.

GOLD-PLATED TV HOAX

Lady Docker Richly Keeps Her Secret

LONDON (Reuters)—Lady North Docker, the average Briton's idea of gold-plated wealth, pulled an audacious hoax on Monday night on Mayfair society and millions of television viewers.

The blonde, vivacious wife of millionaire Sir Bernard Docker appeared as dazzling as ever on a TV panel game. She wore glittering earrings, necklace and bracelets setting off a blue lace gown.

The secret: Her earrings and bracelets were glass, her necklace chorkine and her lace dress off the peg of a low-price dress shop. The total ensemble cost exactly £11 4s 6d.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O GOD, as this day draws to a close, we end our labors conscious that we have lived a life in miniature, from the clear dawn through the heat of the noonday into the cool of the evening. We thank Thee for every minute of it and for all the opportunities it has given us for service. And we lay ourselves down to rest content; in Jesus Christ Our Lord. Amen.

brother was killed while fighting in France; the other brother was to die in a riding accident, and Win's mother was to be killed in a car accident.

As for Win himself, he endured a succession of personal tragedies in his later life. He married four times, and died in 1950 at the age of 61.

Our wedding took place on Nov. 8, 1916, in the church at Baltimore in which I had been confirmed.

We drove to Washington with Cousin Lelia Barnett after the ceremony. She deposited us at the hotel in characteristic Montague style.

"It seems all wrong," she said, "to leave you here with this strange man."

From Washington we went to White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia.

Here, in the hotel soon after we arrived, an odd incident occurred about which I had good reason to reflect upon later.

Win and I had gone to our room to change for dinner. While he was dealing with the luggage, I went to the window. An instant later I was turned around by an explosive nautical oath.

Win was stooped over the dressing table, peering at something under the glass top. "Imagine something like this happening to a man on his honeymoon," he chuckled.

I went over to see what he had read. It was a printed hotel notice stating that West Virginia was a dry state and therefore no alcoholic beverages could be sold on the premises.

"That's hospitality for you," said Win. "We certainly can't stay here."

Middle-of-Road Keeps Control In Italy Vote

ROME (AP) — Middle-of-the-road democracy remained the most powerful force in Italian local government today despite a late leftist surge which left the fascist-monarchist right with the balance of power in many divided town councils.

Even when the centre bloc or their bitter opponents on the far left had made the strongest local showing, due to the system of proportional representation, the smaller rightist groups could swing control either way in such cities as Rome, Genoa, Florence, Trieste, Bari, Venice, Leghorn and Siena.

Since the right feels far more kindly toward the centre than toward the left the bloc of divided monarchists and the Fascist Italian Social Movement likely will work with the centre in most places. Thus the situation was less serious in fact than in theory.

Spokesman for Italy's middle-way government generally felt the two-day administrative elections had been as successful as the centre had expected.

Communist strength, while generally firm, turned spotty in some areas.

Both East and West are watching the returns closely, since this is the first major election in Western Europe since the Kremlin adopted its new policies of anti-Stalinism and co-existence.

The elections are all either for provincial or local councils. By totalling the vote and comparing it to past years, a picture of how Italy is moving politically is gained.

But in political practice there will be hundreds of local political deals between parties which oppose each other nationally. Due to the proportional representation system used in the larger cities, this is necessary to prevent municipal paralysis where the many parties of left, centre and right split the vote.

How to KEEP FIT after 50

In the old days fifty seemed the signal to slow down—take things easy—watch your diet—get more rest. It's still good advice. But these days you can face fifty with many interesting and active years ahead, active, that is, if you can avoid backache and the "tired-out" feeling, due to kidney and bladder disorders, that often develop around that age. For more than 60 years Dodd's Kidney Pills have been helping men and women of all ages to keep kidneys and bladder in good order, helping them to feel better, to work better, and get more fun out of life. If you are approaching fifty, or past it, Dodd's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dodd's. 54

SOCREDS TO FIELD 34 IN N.B.

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Bert R. Lebow, Social Credit member of Parliament for the British Columbia riding of Cariboo, said today his party expects to have 34 candidates in the field for the June 18 New Brunswick election.

Social Credit governments are in power in Alberta and British Columbia. The party holds 14 seats in the House of Commons.

New Brunswick will be the first Atlantic province in which Social Credit has entered enough election candidates to form government.

Fourteen have been nominated to date.

Full slates of 52 candidates have been nominated by Progressive Conservative and Liberal parties. The CCF is not expected to contest any ridings.

Conservatives won 36 of 52 seats in 1952. Liberals won 16. Nominations close June 4.

Russia Will Win Control in Asia Says CBC's Halton

VANCOUVER (CP)—Russia will win the struggle between east and west for the control of Asia, Matthew Halton, chief European correspondent for CBC, told the Canadian Club here Monday.

The United States and Canada are spending more money than Russia in Asia, he said, but the Communist way of life appeals more to the Asian mind.

"Russia threatens to win the neutral part of the world by the economic and social approach," said Mr. Halton. "The Russians are confident there is no need for force."

"Russian leaders are thinking big while British and American leaders these days are not thinking at all," he added.

Manitoba Bans Licence Plate On Front of Car

WINNIPEG (CP)—Manitoba motorists no longer need to have front licence plates. In fact, those who keep them on will be liable for prosecution.

An order-in-council passed May 17 says that all vehicles except motorcycles, high-speed tractors and semi-trailer trucks, shall carry only one licence plate—the rear one. The order, effective May 22, was not publicized until the registrar of motor vehicles, R. B. Baillie, returned Monday from a United States automobile convention. Mr. Baillie also said the province likely will adopt a permanent licence plate next year, replacing the validation strip system.

'Sanity, Good Order' Appeal From Veteran Vancouver MP

From Times News Service

Angus MacInnis, veteran CCF member, Monday appealed to all sides of the House to get back to "sanity" and "good order" in its discussion of the pipeline issue.

The highly-respected 71-year-old member for Vancouver Kingsway got a round of applause from all sides of the House when he said all members should get back to the dignity and decorum that characterized the Commons in the past.

He asked that the leaders of the government side and the opposition parties get together and work out some arrangement whereby the debate on the government's pipeline legislation could get back on its feet.

For the last three days, almost all of the debate on the pipeline issue has been relegated to the sidelines as the Commons, in sometimes disorderly atmosphere, has debated points of order and questions of privilege without so much as mentioning the word pipeline.

Favors Closure

He said he favors the application of closure "at the right time," not on the mere anticipation that the opposition might obstruct some piece of legislation. That was what had happened in the pipeline debate.

"Freedom of debate has died in this House in the last two or three weeks," Mr. MacInnis said. He did not know what could be done to set things right, but he suggested all party leaders get together and try to find some way out.

The opposition could be irresponsible because they held no position of responsibility. However, the government had to be responsible because of its position.

"But in this case the government has been irresponsible," said Mr. MacInnis, speaking for the first time in the pipeline debate.

Sick at Heart

CCF leader Coldwell said that government actions in the pipeline fight have blown up Parliament as a democratic institution.

"Over the last week I have sat here sick at heart at what has been done to this institution of Parliament," he said.

Mr. Coldwell, entering debate on the pipeline bill, attacked the imposition of debate-limiting closure as soon as the House began initial debate on the bill two weeks ago.

He described as "the most pernicious form of closure I have ever seen" the government's more recent action in moving to block any discussion of the bill's first three clauses at the present stage, with the Commons in committee of the whole.

Mr. Coldwell spoke after debate opened Monday on the fourth clause.

He said Prime Minister St. Laurent had announced earlier Monday that the Commons could discuss that clause because of violent criticism in the press and in Commons.

"To what have we come... when we're told we're to be permitted to begin the discussion at clause four?"

He said that 3½ centuries ago Guy Fawkes had plotted to blow up the British House of Commons. All Fawkes had done was plot to blow up bricks and mortar.

What had been done here was "not a plot but an achievement to blow up the democratic institution of Parliament."

Sharp Barbs

Rev. E. G. Hansell accused the Progressive Conservative and CCF parties of following the Communist line in their opposition to the pipeline legislation.

In a 30-minute speech, the Social Credit member for Macleod took the sharp barbs of Conservative and CCF members and replied in kind.

At one point, referring to wastage of Alberta natural gas because there is no pipeline out of the province, Mr. Hansell said: "There is a lot of gas being blown in the air."

Several opposition members chorused "There sure is," referring to Mr. Hansell's remarks.

Pointing to Conservative and CCF benches, Mr. Hansell replied:

Pure Gas

"The gas I'm blowing is pure instead of the rotten, stinking gas..." His remaining words were drowned out by loud cries of glee from the Liberal benches. Throughout his speech, he had a running exchange of repartee with Claude Ellis (CCF-Regina City). "Foghorn Ellis blows again," he said once.

"A Communist, that's what," interjected John Blackmore (SC-Lethbridge).

Another time Mr. Hansell referred to tactics of "character assassination."

"You're an expert at that," interjected a member.

"Listen at this jackass..." said Mr. Hansell. Again his words were drowned out by loud laughter.

Over-Enthusiastic

Trade Minister Howe said a last-minute attempt at temporary private financing of the Alberta-Montreal natural gas pipeline's prairie leg failed because of a general tightening in credit conditions, abroad as well as in Canada.

He said that up until three weeks before the government introduced its latest proposal for construction of the long-stalled pipeline, he had expected the Alberta-Winnipeg leg of the line to be financed privately.

But the credit situation tightened up about that time, through the central banks of both Canada and the United States. The financiers being asked for the necessary backing found the situation out of their hands. The deal fell through.

He gave no details of the temporary plan for private financing as he entered the explosive debate on the government legislation which provides for a federal loan to Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd. of up to $80,000,000 for construction this year of the line's prairie leg.

Mr. Howe, who has been accused by opposition speakers of using dictatorial methods to drive the legislation through Parliament, said that "perhaps I get over-enthusiastic about some projects."

He "perhaps" had given some leadership in attempts to get the pipeline bill through Parliament by June 7.

But, there were many reasons for wanting the line started this year.

There was the "greatest possible pressure" from Alberta, where the situation, with gas capped in wells for lack of markets, was becoming "almost intolerable."

Fulton Foiled

There was a brief flurry of disorder when chairman Edward T. Applewhite, who Monday took W. A. Robinson's position in the chair, called for a vote.

Dave Fulton (PC-Kamloops) tried to move an amendment to revert the debate back to the first clause.

Mr. Applewhite ruled the amendment could not be proposed.

Mr. Fulton then stood and continued to talk above an uproar, while the vote on Mr. Howe's motion to cut off debate on clause three was taken.

Later, Mr. Fulton tried to put his motion again and once more was ruled out of order. He appealed chairman Applewhite's ruling and the chairman was sustained 141 to 57.

At another point Mr. Knowles, CCF procedural expert, argued that the committee could not properly consider clause four without discussing the others. Mr. Applewhite ruled him out of order—a ruling which was also appealed and upheld on the same vote.

Each time Liberal and Social Credit parties and Ross Thatcher (Ind.-Moose Jaw-Lake Centre) supported the ruling, voting against Conservative and CCF members and Paul E. Gagnon (Ind.-Chicoutimi).

Flood Threat, Fires Dwindle

River Rise Slowing Over Province; Blazes Controlled But Hazard High

VANCOUVER (CP)—The immediate threat of flooding seems to have receded a little in British Columbia.

The forest fire scene was also quiet but officials were still anxiously watchful as temperatures climbed and humidity dropped in the coastal woods.

At Creston, 50 miles southeast of Nelson in the southeastern corner of the province, the Kootenay River may have reached its peak.

The water level today was 23.99 feet, up from 23.88 feet Monday and 23.5 feet Sunday. But at Wardner, further upriver, the level dropped slightly in the 24 hours ended 8 a.m. today.

"It doesn't look too bad right now," said P. W. Strilacoff, an engineer with the federal water resources branch here.

More than 40,000 sandbags have been stockpiled at Creston and the provincial government says more will be provided if needed.

In Kelowna, 200 miles northeast of Vancouver, C. F. Faulkner, federal consultant on lakes and rivers, advised city council Monday night the level of Okanagan Lake may rise and flood some shoreline basements.

Warm weather in the interior of the province has resulted in an orderly runoff, he said.

A forest fire on the Sechelt Peninsula, 50 miles northwest of Vancouver, was reported under control after a six-day fight. The blazes chewed through 3,000 acres of timber, resulted in the death of a lineman on a British Columbia Electric Co. crew, and for a time threatened the small community of Egmont.

Britain's New Sub In Port for Repairs

BARROW IN FURNESS, Eng. (AP)—The Admiralty said Monday night the new experimental submarine Explorer has been damaged by a leak in her tanks of highly explosive peroxide fuel. A spokesman said the mishap occurred during tests last week. He said nobody was injured in the accident but the sub suffered minor damage. It returned here for repairs.

TONGAY ADJUDGED INSANE

RAIFORD, Fla. (AP)—Russell Tongay, Miami swimming instructor serving 10 years for the high diving death of his five-year-old "aquat" daughter, Kathy, has been ordered committed to the Florida state hospital as insane.

County Judge S. B. Brooks signed the committing papers Wednesday but the news did not become known until Monday.

Two physicians and warden Dewitt Sinclair testified at a hearing that Tongay is a "manic-depressive, has psychoses, flights of ideas, delusions of persecution and suicidal tendencies that require mechanical restraint."

Behind the Filibuster

THE RECENT SCENES IN THE House of Commons are repulsive but they should not have been unexpected. Once it decided to use closure, the Government might have known that the Opposition would shift the debate from the merits of the pipeline to the issue of parliamentary freedom. A Liberal Party, which has so often raised the same issue, should have been the first to anticipate the present filibuster. A powerful weapon has been handed to the Conservative Party and the C.C.F. and they are using it for all it is worth.

As a result, Parliament has been wrangling about procedural questions and forgetting the pipeline.

The immediate, practical question is whether the pipeline shall be built from Alberta to Winnipeg this year. It cannot be built before winter unless the Government's legislation is passed during the next few days and the Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Company assured of a public loan.

If the Opposition delays this loan beyond the deadline, it must accept responsibility for killing the whole scheme for the present year. The Opposition has skillfully diverted public attention from this fact by fighting the Government's dictatorial methods. The Government for its part has handled the whole matter with distinguished ineptitude.

Its troubles began when it counted, quite wrongly, on the ability of Trans-Canada Pipelines to build the prairie pipeline without Government assistance. It counted also on the Federal Power Commission of the United States to permit the export of Canadian gas to the middle western States—a profitable sale essential to the whole project. When the Power Commission delayed its decision (a possibility which the Government should have foreseen) Trans-Canada could not raise any money and the Government had to come to its aid, very late in the day.

All the Government's troubles arise from its determination to start construction at midsummer, as if Winnipeg could not get through the winter without Alberta gas, as if Toronto must have gas by the end of 1957 or go short of fuel.

The Government is quite right in saying that only Trans-Canada can build this year, being the only owner of the necessary pipe, but it has not demonstrated the necessity of building this year.

The Opposition, on the other hand, has not been candid with the people. It has pretended that, in opposing the Government's policy, it could devise some other scheme and build the prairie section of the pipeline before winter. This is obviously untrue. But in the fury of the filibuster that fact is largely overlooked.

A New Dip in Diplomacy

NO MATTER HOW WIDE THE smiles which the Russians, both as hosts and visitors, bestow on the western world, when it comes to conversation over the private conference table the talk is still as tough as ever.

The recent discussions between Prime Minister Eden and his Soviet guests were described as frank and down-to-earth. French Premier Mollet did not resort to such diplomatic language to describe the talks he had in Moscow with Messrs. Bulganin and Khrushchev. He said they were "brutal" in their bluntness.

There may be some advantages in this form of diplomacy. It should be safer in the long run than devious phraseology that leaves negotiators guessing at the real meanings.

Point of Hazard

WORK IN THE VANCOUVER Forest District, including this Island, has been restricted because of the high fire hazard. Citizens are still permitted to enter the woods for recreation, but they are cautioned to be careful.

The warning places a heavy responsibility on everyone in or near timber stands. Carelessness at this season could breed disaster.

That point has been proved on the mainland where the biggest fire of the season raged last week near Pender Harbor. Forestry officials attributed the blaze to a cigarette tossed from a car.

Raising the Curtain

WESTERN SCIENTISTS HAVE been allowed to see Russia's formerly top-secret atom-smashing laboratory and have been deeply impressed.

The visit was permitted, observers believe, because the Soviets were certain that Western scientists would react to the sight as they have done.

"Anyone seeing it would be bowled over," Dr. Louis Alvarez, nuclear scientist from the University of California, commented. "They are doing absolutely first-class work."

Under the best of circumstances the Government was pinched in a tight timetable but it has unnecessarily worsened its position by clumsy leadership in the House. Its first duty was to make clear to Parliament and to the public that closure would not of itself prevent a complete discussion of the pipeline, but this it failed to do.

The Opposition, not the Government, has prevented that discussion by deliberately using all the available time for procedural argument and propaganda. With notable clumsiness, the Government has allowed itself to be thrown on the defensive and finally has made the cardinal mistake of suspending an Opposition member, Mr. Fleming, who thus becomes a symbol of parliamentary freedom in danger.

Still more extraordinary is the long silence of the Prime Minister. He seems to have turned over the leadership of the House to Mr. Howe and Mr. Harris when his unequalled prestige is required, as never before, to carry the Government through an awkward dilemma.

The Opposition has managed to put the best face on its own dilemma, when it is really trying to kill the pipeline for the present year and has split on this issue with the Conservative Government of Ontario. The Government has managed to put the worst possible face on everything.

It remains true, however, that the issue of parliamentary freedom is more important than any pipeline, as Mr. Mackenzie King would have been the first statesman to realize.

But is parliamentary freedom actually a real issue here? It can be made to look like a real issue by sound and postures but in this case it is a bogus issue. For if the Opposition had not raised a swarm of procedural points in a calculated filibuster it would have had plenty of time to discuss the pipeline bill. Closure is always bad and, in the case of a Liberal majority almost intolerable, but it need not have stifled a full debate.

Since the Opposition is responsible for stifling the debate by using the available time for a political manoeuvre it should admit in honesty that it is ready to postpone the pipeline for a year at least and perhaps longer.

That would be an honest position, for which much can be said, since the Government proposes to go ahead now without knowing whether gas can be exported to the United States, whether Trans-Canada Pipe Lines can carry the project through to Toronto, or whether the state must take it over next spring.

The Opposition is not taking that position. It is discussing everything but the pipeline. It is conducting not a debate but an election campaign with unknown effects on the public mind.

But it indicates also that Russia is speaking from a position of strength. Premier Mollet went to Moscow hoping to get Mr. Khrushchev to issue a statement deploring Arab interference in the Algerian problem. All he got was a toast by his host, "to the Arabs and all others who are struggling for national independence." No visiting head of state could be more brusquely refused. They didn't even bother to sharpen the dagger.

That the toast came from a government which holds a score of formerly independent nations under its control, that it was merely a mockery of what it purported to be, adds to the impact. The masks are on and the gloves are off, and we have had full warning.

People driving along the highways, picnickers, fishermen, campers and hikers have been told repeatedly of the dangers they create when they are thoughtless with fires and smoldering smoking material. At this time in particular they should remember that their woods are at stake. The places where they find enjoyment as well as the source of British Columbia's main revenue, are entrusted to their care.

For their own sakes they must think twice before discarding a match or a glowing cigarette.

It was an extremely impressive visit. There may be some satisfaction in noting the way Russian scientists have drawn aside a curtain, but it is diminished by the thought that the Soviets have taken another important propaganda trick. They seem to be saying: "Look, we're so good in nuclear science we can afford to show you our advancement."

With the world in its present state, that isn't too reassuring a development.

The Man With the Golden Arm

LOOSE ENDS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The Horizontal Hero

THE man who grows only flowers is not to be held in contempt, even though he has no economic value in an age which measures everything by economics. But he is not to be compared in stature to the man who grows vegetables. The vegetable grower is the true sovereign and colossus of the garden, though he may not look it, being bent double, dwarfed and permanently deformed by his toil.

These sovereigns and colossi are now locked in their annual crisis but no one is likely to notice their agony. The passer by seldom pauses to observe the countless tragedies enacted daily in the private theatre of the back yard. The neighbors never hear of them. The newspapers never report them.

HAS any newspaper recorded, for example, the disaster of Mr. Horace Snifkin's cabbages, which arrived from a commercial nursery in excellent health and promptly wilted from the ravages of some invisible insect?

Do the police ever bother to pursue those busy criminals, the quail, that have destroyed all Mr. Snifkin's peas, even when they were covered with wire netting? Has the public noted that onions are sickly this year and that the casualties among beans are appallingly high?

No, the vegetable gardener, unlike the grower of blossom, must pursue his travail unaided and unsung. But he is the supreme practitioner of the gardening art just the same.

ANYONE can grow flowers. They grow themselves with little assistance from human hands. Their fragile look contrasts with a rough and ravenous nature. The vegetables which seem so robust are in fact extremely delicate.

A vegetable marrow can be more temperamental than a female star from Hollywood, and shaped much the same. A cucumber, though reputed to be cool, is full of hot pride and requires the most subtle management if it is to survive. Corn is subject to more diseases and moods than the human being. The cauliflower is afflicted with a suicidal instinct and a death wish.

Like a physician, the grower must know all these perils and somehow forestall them by cunning treatment and secret potions.

LIKE all public servants, like our members of Parliament and our provincial governments, the vegetable grower is always subject to libel and the slurs of the ignorant.

It is commonly supposed that he grows vegetables to save money when, of course, he invariably loses money, together with his labor. Everybody who has grown vegetables for himself knows that he could have purchased them for less than half the cost in any store. I once kept a statistical account of my vegetable garden, discovered that green peas cost me $3.75 a pound, reckoning my wages at worth 40 cents an hour (a high estimate) but soon abandoned my leaguers as too discouraging.

No sensible man grows vegetables for economic reasons or any mundane motive. He grows them for the honor of the human species and the glory of mankind.

THIS may not be immediately apparent from his outer look, for in truth he is a sorry spectacle—a crumpled figure, most likely on hands and knees crawling down his dismal rows, a poor broken piece of mechanism ill designed for his task, obviously built to be vertical yet perverted horizontally on the earth in defiance of nature.

That is the whole point of vegetable growing—it defies nature, which never intended to permit it, which resents man's presence in its garden and puts every obstacle in his way. Otherwise, why did nature invent caterpillars, slugs, caterpillars and a thousand other natural ills that vegetable flesh is heir to?

Every possible barrier is raised against the grower, all the dice loaded and precisely for that reason he persists in his planting, weeding and hoeing, as other men lead the lost causes of war and politics, climb Mount Everest or swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

THEY do these things not for profit or honor, but because they are men and not vegetables. Human heroism takes many forms, not least the nameless, horizontal figure in the back yard battling with all the hostile forces of the universe.

Moreover, the grower is almost unique in this age of impersonal mass production. He can see the results of his labor and know that he is paying his way in society. A man who turns a nut on an assembly line can hardly regard the completed automobile as his own creation. The man who writes down figures in an office, or even the executives of a great business cannot enjoy the satisfactions of the craftsman. But the man who harvests even a single squash in the autumn knows that he has not lived entirely in vain. He has produced something. He will not go empty-handed to the grave. If luck is with him and the season good, he may even have some vegetables fit to eat.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"QUIT THE CLOWNIN' RUFF! WE GOTTA GET THIS NEWSPAPER BACK NICE N' NEAT BEFORE DAD GETS HOME!"

FROM BAGHDAD, IRAQ

By JOSEPH ALSOP

A Visit to the Strong Man

WHEN this reporter called on the famous Nuri Pasha, the strong man and perennial Prime Minister of Iraq, it was rather alarmingly like disturbing an owl in the daylight hours. Forty odd years have passed since this remarkable man became one of the founders of the Arab independence movement as a young officer in the Turkish Imperial Army. He has lived hard through all the subsequent decades. He is 67. That morning, moreover, his blood pressure was troubling him. He was waiting impatiently for his doctor. And meanwhile he sat huddled in his dressing gown, his piercing eyes hooded as though against the light, and really looking remarkably owlish.

Alsop

One sensed at once, too, that Nuri Pasha was quite justifiably embittered by the fantastic choppings and changings of American policy towards the Baghdad Pact—which he has gambled Iraq's future. Hence he was cynical about the usefulness of any message he might address to the United States.

Venomous Propaganda

So he came to life only once, when he was asked about the venomous propaganda aimed at him and his government by Egypt's Gamal Abdel Nasser, who is Nuri's presently successful rival for leadership of the Arab world.

Then the deep eyes flashed, and Nuri Pasha declared firmly that he had been risking his life for the cause of Arab independence before Gamal Abdel Nasser was out of swaddling clothes.

For the rest: No, he was not troubled by the weakening link between Iraq and Jordan; no, he was not disturbed by Syria's closeness to Egypt; no, he was not disturbed either because Iraq was the only Arab state in the Baghdad Pact.

In a way, the situation here in Iraq rather resembled this curious meeting, so reassuring on the surface, yet not without its disquieting side if you thought about it a little.

On the surface all is well in Iraq. Nuri Pasha's government is strong, and Communist and Egyptian agitators are sternly controlled by an efficient police. The magnificently conceived Iraqi Development program is already bringing a bustling new prosperity. Later, it should make Iraq the economic showplace of the Arab world.

Even today, moreover, the dictatorship here is far less severe than in Egypt. From the social welfare standpoint, this is Utopia compared to Egypt's strange ally, Saudi Arabia, whose oil dollars finance Egypt's policy.

Outwardly, therefore, it seems perfectly reasonable to hope that pro-Western Iraq will serve as an example and a magnet, to attract the other Arab states towards a policy less hostile to the West.

This theory of Iraq's magnetism is important, because it is held in many quarters in Washington and is the declared basis of British Middle Eastern policy. But as of today, the theory is not working out in practice. Iraq's isolation from the rest of the Arab world is in truth increasing, at this moment, with every passing week.

Serious Effects

Furthermore, the failure of the theory is having serious effects within Iraq. Nuri Pasha may tell a casual interviewer that he does not mind being isolated from his Arab brothers, so long as he is doing the right thing.

But in fact he told the British government that it was absolutely essential for his government to have at least one other Arab state in the Baghdad Pact. The British attempt to meet this plea from Nuri in turn led to the disastrous mission to Jordan of Gen. Sir Gerald Templer, which ended by making matters a great deal worse.

The truth is that all the nationalist emotions that have gripped the rest of the Arab world are powerfully surging beneath the surface here in Iraq. The impulse towards Arab unity is only one of these emotions, but it is particularly strong here because so many Iraqis blame the Western-sponsored Baghdad Pact for Iraq's isolation.

The truth is, further, that in these nations which are making the enormous transition from an ancient form to a modern form of society the normal tests of reason and self-interest often do not work very well in shaping events. Pure emotion is often more decisive.

Internal Trouble

In these circumstances, if present trends continue, one can predict rather positively that the theory of Iraq's magnetism will never become valid. If present trends continue, in truth, one can predict eventual bad internal trouble here in Iraq—and if Iraq abandons her present, pro-Western orientation, nothing but naked force will cure the situation in the Middle East.

The point is, however, that present trends do not need to continue unless the American government is permanently wedded to its present line of blandly hoping for the best and blindly refusing to prepare for the worst.

In the Middle East—as in the Far East, strength is respected and nothing succeeds like success. What is needed to reverse present trends is simply a firm, clear and united Anglo-American policy, better adjusted to Middle Eastern realities than the present British policy, and immeasurably more positive and determined than the curious mixture of aimless drift and ad-man's slogans that now passes for a Middle Eastern policy in Washington.

Victoria Specialty

Thinking over the capital show put on by the Indians at their "Festival," my mind wandered to distinctive and different shows put on by other cities. Cannes' "Battle of Flowers," Calgary, "The Stampede"; Pasadena, "Tournament of Roses," etc.

Why not publicize Victoria's "Indian Festival" as a big yearly event? We have the world's Tallest Totem Pole. Just a thought for the gentlemen of the Chamber of Commerce.

SUBSCRIBER.

Worthy of Help

Without singling out one of the three recent top-rating Mozart chamber music concerts given by members of the Victoria Symphony Society, it would be an understatement to say that any and every empty seat in the Victoria High School represented the loss of an outstandingly rich experience, an "experience" that one hopes will again be afforded us next year.

Words are all too inadequate to explain music or its vast and varying effects upon the listener—all of this a healing and revitalizing contribution. However, if all the aesthetic delights one has known in hearing, seeing and feeling could be assessed, then perhaps that would half explain the thrill of these concerts which featured prominent solo artists living in our midst and already marching toward fame. The "rapport" existing between players and audience was well-nigh perfect. To keep this significant cultural wealth in Victoria every citizen should "petition" if necessary for a civic grant to make it possible.

AFTER THE FIRE BALL IS OVER

By B. A. TOBIN

Standing Joke or Sitting Duck?

WE'VE been hearing a lot lately about civil defence and the best way to survive the next hydrogen bomb war. But it seems to me the civil defence people are overlooking one important question. And that is: who wants to survive the next hydrogen bomb war?

A good many folks who've been reading about fire balls, atomic blast, the deadly radioactive fallout and other promised treats for the next war aren't too sure they want to be around either during or after it.

So before we start deciding to save the population, maybe we ought to find out if it wants to be saved.

The civil defenders seem to be working on this proposition: An atomic war is essentially a war of competitive annihilation. The final tableau of the next conflict may well be a handful of sterile, gibbering idiots sitting on a heap of cinders in a shattered, blackened desert. To ensure victory we must see to it that these will be Our gibbering idiots and not theirs.

But it's what you might call a hollow victory.

I think what we need even more than a civil defence is a civilized offence—something quiet and with restricted effects, like the broadsword or bows and arrows we wrongly think of as uncivilized.

Digs Too Deep

The way things are developing, a war will not only destroy the flower of the nation, (as it always has up to now), but it will also root up the seedbed. When active service becomes radioactive it's time to call a halt.

Even the generals, none of whom have ever fought an atomic war, are hazing guesses on what it will be like.

Viscount Montgomery got on the spot the other day by telling the press that the best place for everybody would be down in the cellar. Nobody had tipped him off that Canadian civil defence experts advocate trying to get as much of the population as possible evacuated to safer areas. I'm inclined to side with Monty, myself. I figure it's going to be a cellar's market.

There's a lot of talk about distance from the target area. But it seems to me we're putting too much trust in the enemy bomb aimers. Suppose they are not the dead-eye Dicks they should be? Then where's the bomb going to land?

The target might turn out to be the safest place after all.

There used to be a story of the great Halifax explosion. It seems that one man took to his heels and ran and ran and ran. He got about two miles away from the site of the explosion—just as a 50-pound chunk of anchor, flung skywards by the terrific blast, landed on the same spot he was occupying. That took precision timing.

The Winnah

There'll be even less use trying to outrun an atomic explosion. Unless you've got a good head start the bomb is a cinch for straight, place and show.

Of course, this whole thing works both ways, and that's where most of the hope lies. If both sides have the Big Weapon there may be less chance some body will start things rolling.

There would still remain a threat of the Pearl Harbor type of war declaration. Only this time it would not be a fleet of bombers sinking a few ships in harbor. It would be a matter of a thousand giant rockets with atomic warheads swishing off to hit a thousand unsuspecting cities and airbases. When both sides have that power, that's the kind of situation where trigger fingers begin to quiver, and one false alarm could easily turn into the real thing.

General Curtis Lemay, who heads the U.S. Strategic Air Command, guesses that after 1958 the Russians will be strong enough in bombers and nuclear weapons to wipe out the United States in a surprise attack, if everything went off perfectly.

That makes it important to know who will be in charge of the buttons over there a couple of years from now. A nervous fellow in that spot would be watching.

I'd hate to have him wipe me out by mistake. But it would be a good joke on him.

Friends in Ottawa

"JIMMY" Stanislas Charron is a stocky, grey-haired French-Canadian in his sixties who works for the Federal Government Public Works Department, smiles happily on mankind and, in his own way, does a good job for Canadian unity.

The other day, he unlocked the door leading to the flat section of Ottawa's Confederation Building roof, just below its steep peak, so we could enjoy the view.

Below us the Ottawa River slipped by, breaking into white water where it hit the shore of a barren little island, "Lone Pine Island," Jimmy said, "after a little tree that once grew there."

"There used to be a lot of trees," he explained. "I was born over there," he continued, pointing off toward the Gatineau Hills. "When I was young they used to give a boy an axe and turn him loose in the woods. We had as good a time with an axe as the kids today have with a hockey stick. We weren't afraid of work."

When he was 17, Jimmy travelled far westward to the prairies. "I wanted to find out about farming," he took one job after another, explaining that he hadn't fought with his bosses, felt a little apologetic about leaving, but wanted to see more and learn more. Work, to Jimmy, seems to be a responsibility he accepts and discharges with a certain pride.

Now he's in Ottawa, comfortably near his birthplace, with a contented outlook and a friendliness to all types of people.

FEEL AT HOME

Jimmy Stanislas Charron is a man of simple virtues, friendly and agreeable to strangers—a person who makes you feel very much at home in his part of Canada and helps you to find common ground among the diverse elements which make up this nation. His natural tongue is French, yet his English is good, with that slight change in emphasis on syllables attractive in people who know more than one language.

You might find many counterparts to Mr. Charron in Ottawa. But, if you came from Victoria, you wouldn't have to look far for fellow townsmen.

In the Confederation Building you could call on Ron Burns, who went from the B.C.

Government finance department to a bigger job in the federal capital.

On the floor above him you could find the office of Ken Eaton, who was a young First World War veteran recently graduated from Dalhousie when he came to Oak Bay. High School to teach maths, coach rugby, play full-back for the Wanderers and row for the J.B.A.A. It's Dr. Ken Eaton now, the senior authority on taxation, who still goes hunting and fishing with his friend and ex-boss, former Finance Minister and now Mr. Justice Douglas Abbott. But memories stay with him of the good days at Oak Bay.

You can ride up to the fourth floor of the Central Block and visit Dr. Frank Fairley, and possibly Mrs. Fairley, who has accompanied him to Ottawa, if you arrive there after the House has risen.

Or you can slip into the Lord Elgin Hotel and run into Harry and Senator Nancy Hodges, cheerful guides through the Parliament Buildings.

WHISPER "VICTORIA"

Whisper "Victoria" to them and you have a magic "Open Sesame."

When you stroll through Parliamentary corridors, you can bump into Harold Winch, a young man on crutches and thoroughly unhappy with them. You may see former B.C. M.L.A. Grace Macinnis, daughter of the C.C.F. founder and attentive wife of Vancouver's Angus Macinnis.

You can look from the gallery at Gen. Pearkes, who makes no secret of his longing to be back in Victoria.

And you find, as you wander around, that newspaper pictures have made you familiar with vast numbers of people you know only by report. It's a bit confusing, seeing a well-known face and trying to remember whether it's an acquaintance or a person of national distinction.

You run into George Drew, are probably introduced to him, receive a warm smile and hear his inquiries about the Coast. Nobody mentions the Great Schism on such occasions.

And in the Press Gallery you find the personalities so widely known for their bylines—particularly if your guide happens to be Vic Mackie, whose Ottawa material appears in this newspaper.

It's an appealing city, Ottawa, with enough Victorians in it to remind you of the particular charm of B.C.'s capital—a fine city to visit, Ottawa, with weather that makes you appreciate life on the West Coast.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Aftermath of World War

LONDON—A Canadian, Louise Cushing, has been writing in the London press about a few things she feels are wrong with England. These include the cold toast she has encountered in hotels during her visit. In Canada you get it warm and soggy. The English prefer it cold and crisp. It's not a case of one being right and the other wrong; it's just a matter of taste.

But Miss Cushing's main blast is reserved for the fact that she doesn't think England has cleaned up very well after the recent war. "Why doesn't someone do something," she asks, "about the dozens of abandoned, deserted and dilapidated airfields and hangars, army camps and gun emplacements, which blot the countryside? Is it that the English are so accustomed to living with ruins and ghosts of earlier centuries that those of the twentieth are not noticeable?"

There is no question that a person coming from Canada does notice things like concrete pillboxes still around the place in these parts. Canada did not have the threat of invasion hanging over her head, so fortunately it was never necessary to turn the whole country into an armed fortress, as was the case in England. To Canadians it seems strange to still see these evidences of war after so many years, but there are various aspects of this.

In the first place, Britain is not unwise enough to scrub out all those defence establishments, even those specially constructed during the war and now not in use. Who knows that they won't be needed again and perhaps soon... particularly with incidents happening such as frogmen disappearing in the vicinity of visiting Russian navy ships.

No doubt that is why one still sees evidence of previous wars around Toronto and elsewhere in Canada. It might be argued that Toronto's fort should have been pulled down as soon as its immediate function had ceased.

But another point—and this also applies to the clearing of bomb-damaged areas still to be seen here—is that demolishing and clearing away defence structures that can safely be written off takes labor. Britain's policy following the mess left behind and the housing shortage that resulted from the war has been to use her building labor mainly for construction rather than demolition. Far better to have the workers putting up much needed new buildings instead of pulling down damaged or otherwise useless buildings.

Building permits after the war applied not only to construction but you had to obtain one also if you wanted to do away with some eyesore. That is a reason why so much of the aftermath of World War II is still in evidence here.

CAN CITY REGULATE JUNKYARDS?

Magistrate Is Doubtful

The legality of the city's "junkyard by-law" was questioned by Magistrate H. C. Hall at the trial Monday of Leslie D. Foxgord, charged with maintaining a junkyard without a licence.

Magistrate Hall said he could find nothing in the Municipal Act which gave the city the authority to control junkyards within its boundaries.

"The Act says junk shop," said the magistrate. "I see no mention of junkyard."

City prosecutor said in the past the city's by-law has never been questioned.

"That may be so, but it is an issue here," replied the magistrate.

The magistrate remanded judgment until June 1.

Foxgord, who resides at 1144 Queens Avenue, was accused of maintaining a junkyard on the boulevard on the north side of Princess Avenue, between Government and Douglas Streets.

HOME GARDEN

Cauliflowers Need Rich But Firm Soil

Every gardener cannot boast of success with cauliflower, not because the plants are difficult, but owing to soil conditions not being to their liking.

Good curds, as the white heads are termed, come from soil rich in manure or compost, the very nature of which makes the soil loose.

Opposed to this is the common liking of all members of the cabbage family for a firmly packed soil. Unless the roots are in a tight soil only mediocre curds will result.

If the gardener can supply the needed manure or compost, and then roll or tread the soil until it is difficult to force in a trowel, he has good chances of success.

Also in common with the cabbage family is the liking for a limed soil, and a sprinkling of a week or so before the plants are set out is most beneficial.

Nitrate of potash is the best stimulant to use during the growing period. It stiffens the plant cells and counteracts the lush growth which results from the rich soil.

Five to Attend UBCM Convention

Mayor Percy Scurrell Monday named city delegates to a Union of B.C. Municipalities convention at Penticton Oct. 3, 4 and 5. They are the mayor, Ald. Robert Macmillan, Ald. W. F. Pinfold, Ald. Arthur Dowell and Ald. Geoffrey Edgell.

Permit was issued at City Hall Monday for addition of four suites to produce an eight-suite apartment block at 212 Government.

Cost will be $20,000 and work will be carried out by the owner, E. N. Liersch.

the power's all yours...

Engineers have found that today's high-horsepower, high-compression engines are especially sensitive to certain deposits.

Within only a few thousand miles, deposits form which cause spark plugs to "miss." When this happens, power falls off. Performance generally gets sluggish. Obviously, what's needed is a way to stop spark plug "miss."

Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP*, the greatest gasoline development in 31 years, neutralizes engine deposits. TCP additive restores power to your car that pre-firing and spark plug "miss" take away.

Stevens Fears Anti-British Bias In Howe's Gas Pipeline Policies

(From The Canadian Press) PENTICTON—Hon. H. H. Stevens, a trade and commerce minister in the Meighen cabinet of 1921, and the Bennett government of 1930, Monday night described Defence Production Minister C. D. Howe's pattern of leadership as following that of William Lyon Mackenzie King who "kicked Great Britain in the face."

"The pipeline issue, causing so much furor in Parliament today, has been discussed for four years," he said.

"Why, during these last four years wasn't the government going about seeing if pipe could be secured from Great Britain or Belgium, our wheat customers?" Mr. Stevens asked.

"I'm afraid Mr. Howe is seeking to do in a modern business way what Mackenzie King did in 1946 to sever as much as possible all contact with the British government."

"Today's alarm throughout the country about threatened control of Canada's economic life by U.S. investors can be attributed directly to the policies and doctrines laid down by Mackenzie King," Mr. Stevens said.

BABY DIES IN FIRE

SQUAMISH—Theresa Renouf, six-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Renouf, died here early today when fire destroyed the family home.

RCMP said the parents and another daughter, Melody, 8, escaped. The blaze is believed to have started near an oil stove.

First reports said the flames were spotted by a PGE engine driver who blew a fire signal on his train whistle. The signal was heard by a telephone operator who turned in the alarm.

KILLED AT KITIMAT

KITIMAT—Robert James Hall, 35, of North Vancouver, father of six, was killed in a traffic accident here Saturday.

LEGION PIONEER DIES

VANCOUVER—Funeral services were to be held here today for William Huggins, 94, veteran of three wars, the oldest Vancouver member of the Canadian Legion.

DIES AT KAMLOOPS

KAMLOOPS—James Milne Benzie, former homestead appraiser and grazing supervisor for the federal government, died here Sunday. He was 91.

FIRE DODGERS FINED

PRINCE GEORGE—Four men were fined $25 and costs Monday when found guilty of failing to report for fire fighting duties.

SOMMERS' BROTHER DIES

CASTLEGAR—Harry Sommers, 58, former member of the Castlegar village commission and a brother of Rossland-Trail MLA Robert Sommers, died at work here Monday. He was employed by Waldie lumber mills as a planer foreman.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. C. W. Wanless of Penticton and Mrs. W. Dalton of Port Angeles, Wash.

COMINCO EX-OFFICIAL DIES

TRAIL—Funeral services were held here Monday for A. J. (Scotty) McDonnell, former superintendent of transportation for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co., who died last Thursday.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

WILLIAMS LAKE—Brian Chance of Douglas Lake Cattle Co. was re-elected president of the B.C. Livestock Producers Co-operative Association at the annual meeting here Monday.

ARSON SUSPECT HELD

VANCOUVER—Police Monday arrested a 38-year-old man

for investigation in connection with seven fires set by an arsonist in downtown Vancouver Friday night. He is being held without charge.

NEW JAIL FOR WOMEN

VANCOUVER—Attorney General Robert Bonner announced here Monday that a new women's jail will be built in the Fraser valley to replace the present women's block at Oakalla prison farm.

Mr. Bonner did not name the area in the valley where the jail will be built. It will be on the "cottage type" instead of the traditional type of building containing a series of cell blocks.

Two mountains more than 13,000 feet high have been surveyed by Australia's Antarctic expedition.

LONDON (Reuters)—Thundery rain spread over most of England today, causing temperatures to drop and reducing the danger of forest and heath fires which have been burning in many districts.

Fire Hoses Break Up Protesting Douks

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—A crowd of shouting and wailing Sons of Freedom, offshoot radicals of the Russian Doukhobor sect, were dispersed by a fire hose here Monday.

The Sons, about 30 women and a half-dozen men, were wetted when they gathered at the home of Emmett Gulley, secretary taken to the school two years ago when the Freedomites failed to comply with provincial laws requiring that the children be enrolled in school.

The sect claims Canadian schools teach militarism, contrary to their religious beliefs.

The fire department was called when the men and women refused to break up the noisy meeting on the lawn of Mr. Gulley's home. When the first stream of water hit them two women fell to the ground, wailing and screaming as down.

DRIVEN BY HOSES—They stopped only about a half-block away, however, and the paired hose was brought into play again. The pumper truck carrying the hose followed them down the main street of town, spraying them every time they stopped or slowed

Gay Taps to Classic Ballet Provide Fine Entertainment

The sparkling finish that goes with the perfect timing gained only through a competent teacher was seen Monday night at the Royal Theatre where the Velda Wille School of Dancing presented its "Maytime Revue."

More than 200 young dancers tripped lightly through the evening with ease and assurance. Every type of dancing was presented from gay taps and modern steps to the classic ballet.

The revue was sponsored by Esquimalt Chapter, IOOE, and presented by Velda Wille, assisted by Bebe de Roland.

Mickey Francis was a clever narrator, assisted by young Lorraine Johnson. Orchestra was under the direction of Reg Wood; the pianist was Mrs. Mary Graves and scenery was in charge of Dolly Jones and Jim Ferguson.

Main theme of the revue was woven around the age-old story of "Cinderella." Dainty Sylvia Mobey in the part of the little slave who became a princess, danced and mimed her way into the hearts of every member of the audience.

PERFECTION

The stepsisters, Myrna Smith and Doreen Coles, brought to their parts, not only perfection in dancing but a knowledge of comedy that was a delight.

Rosemary Tierney as the Fairy Godmother; Barbara Hodgson as Prince Charming, and Jane Bowering as the Kitten added much to the beloved fairy tale. A pas seil was danced by Mavis Veness with a grace and finish that brought enthusiastic applause from the audience as did the "Bluebird" danced by Donna Hawkins.

DANCED, MIMED

Marie Tippet and Janet Haveny as the coachmen in the "Cinderella" story danced and mimed in perfect unison; the horses, complete with red or green tails, were outstanding. They were impersonated by Kathryn Haverly, Lynne Fan-thorpe, Lynne Hallam, Gail Hodgkins, Patricia Walton, Anita Davis, Joanne Main, Cheryl Arnold, Margaret Dunn, Maurie Hallam and Sharon Kade.

Exquisite little fairies that tripped their way through the story were Susan Robinson, Marie Malpass, Donna Allison, Marilyn Allison, Nancy Brooks, Beverley Cochrane, Delia Eldridge and Irene Smith.

Hing Mar was much applauded as a Russian Princess; Marilyn Sommers and Carl Rudolph had heads nodding in unison to Kibya, Yemen and the Sudan.

IT'S MY VIEW BY Bill Walker

The weekend in review, or who's going to stop the Timbermen?

The Nanaimo powerhouse is off and rolling, and the boxers of Harry Wipperf are going to be hard to head off.

The Intercity Box Lacrosse League race this year could develop into a runaway for the Timber cruisers from Nanaimo. They've got as much as last year and, in this book, more.

Bobby Allan and Wipperf more than make up for the loss of Jim McNulty and Bob Bremner.

went on; Bomar chipped in with a 258. Each had seven strikes in a row before Bomar missed.

Carter chipped in with a meagre 245 in the second game and then must have thrilled millions, as he did us, by stringing together nine strikes in the final before getting a 4-7-10 split. That split cost him a crack at $10,000, the TV prize for a perfect game. His total—809.

There are several other fine sport shows on the video screen, but for a truly amazing display of perfection, Carter headed this week's honor roll.

Social Notes and Travel Tips

Socially, the week-end feature was the tribute to Ted Reynolds and his good wife "Duff."

Ted, now at CBUT, and the misus were honored at Royal Colwood by representatives of all city sports. Dick Batey said what everyone thought but couldn't have put into more suitable words. In essence, Ted's fine work for sports in the city long will be remembered, and not easily duplicated in future.

The city, too, loses another sports personality in the near future.

Jim McKeachie, former Rock, and a director of the Irish, takes up a new post in Vancouver come July.

And while on the subject, a fellow caught in the web he helped spin down at Police Court, has succumbed to the lure of the law.

Times police reporter and howling writer Ron Coulter, the best at howling in B.C. this year, has pulled up stakes and will be handing out tickets soon as a member of the Saanich constabulary.

Stan Leonard picked up in the recent Dallas Golf Open, and by doing so marked the first time in recent weeks he hasn't picked up part of the take. Until Saturday he had averaged $1,500 a tourney for the previous four events.

... That Crippled Kids May Walk

Elsewhere on this page today, you will note a new feature "Solarium Corner."

The space so occupied will be used to pay all-too-little tribute to some of the fellows who are making, and who have made, such valuable contributions to the annual Anglers-Times Solarium Derby, scheduled this year for July 22 in Saanich Inlet.

They have asked not for this special treatment—their only concern is that the crippled children at the Solarium benefit from the derby proceeds. And what they do ask is that if you are interested in the work of the Solarium, they will be only too pleased to solicit your membership in this worthy cause.

That the derby has the blessing of Solarium officials, if there was any doubt, may be found in the following letter from president W. G. Heaney:

Mr. A. Anderson,
President,
Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association,
Victoria, B.C.

Dear Sir:
We would like to tell you how much we appreciate the support given the Queen Alexandra Solarium for Crippled Children.

Your organization has been outstanding and ranks high as one of our most generous and consistent contributors.

It may surprise many to know to what extent the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association has contributed financially to the Solarium. Last year, a contribution was made to our Building Fund in the amount of $6,648.65. Over a period of years a total amount of $30,259.58 has been donated.

This has been made possible through the Annual "Solarium Derby"—a masterpiece of organizing sparked with the unmitigated enthusiasm of your members.

Please convey our thanks and gratitude to a membership so responsive to the needs of others.

Yours sincerely,
W. G. HEANEY,
President.

Solarium Corner

George Douglas is shooting high in his first year as chairman of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association Solarium Derby.

George's target is a $7,000 bundle to go to the Queen Alexandra Solarium and work for crippled children. Last year, $6,648 was realized, while the all-time high was in 1954, when $6,723 found its way into Solarium coffers.

The Derby, co-sponsored by The Times this year for the seventh straight time, will be held Sunday, July 22, in Saanich Inlet, and Douglas has 30 committee members working for him to help make it a success.

Top prize is a 1956 Ford Fairlane sedan.

Douglas is an ardent fisherman himself, of course, and has been connected with the Derby committee for the past seven years.

A draftsman by trade, George was secretary of the committee for six years before taking over the chairmanship reins from Wes Fulton. He's married and has two children.

Tickets, at $1.00 a crack, are available from Douglas, com-

WES SANTEE'S OWN STORY

'AAU Lined Up to Make Sure I Was Banned'

(EDITOR'S NOTE: L. Wes Santee is banned from Olympic competition because of an AAU ruling which declared him a professional. In his first of two articles, Santee spells out with typical frankness. He gives his side of the story and tells apart the decision which deprives America's Olympic team of its premier miler.)

By L. WES SANTEE
As Told to Jimmy Breslin
NEA Staff Correspondent

MARINE CORPS SCHOOLS, QUANTICO, Va. (NEA)—It seems when you read the legal-sounding print, that the ruling which banned me from the United States Olympic team was the result of a sturdy, well-principled machinery which upholds the cause of amateur athletics in this country.

But the case against Wes Santee, as given by the Amateur Athletic Union and backed by a New York State Supreme Court judge, does not show what it actually was—a vindictive attack by a lot of people who do nothing for athletics except to keep themselves well-heeled in free tickets to meets and more-than-pleasant ocean trips to Helsinki or Melbourne or wherever our track and field athletes perform.

I was declared a professional, the AAU states, because I took $1,500 above normal expenses during a period of 22 meets. I broke, they claim, a bookful of rules. From Avery Brundage, our perennial Olympic boss, down to Dan Ferris, secretary-treasurer of the AAU, the people who conduct amateur athletics in the United States lined up to make sure I was banned.

But when you go back to the start of my trouble, you find it is a little different.

Last April, after I returned from the Pan-American Games in Mexico City, Harold Berliner, a top AAU official in California, wrote me. A newspaper in San Francisco was holding a meet on May 5 and he was to be referee. Would I please enter?

I wrote Berliner and told him that two years back, I had promised Dr. Ralph Mulligan of Reading, Pa., that I would appear in a meet he ran as a benefit for a parochial high school. I couldn't, I told Berliner, go back on my word.

A couple of weeks later, I went to the west coast for the Fresno Relays, and Berliner came over to me. He was going to put on the pressure for his San Francisco meet—the one at which he would cover himself with glory by being referee, of course.

"I can't turn those people in Reading down," I told him. "We will make it worth your while if you come to San Francisco," Berliner said.

On May 5, as Scheduled, I ran in Reading. On May 20, the San Francisco newspaper which held the meet broke a story that I had been receiving more expense money than the AAU allowed. I had hired a booking agent, become the biggest thing to come along in the business of speed since Captain Kidd, the story said.

Using the impossible-to-read rule book as a guide, the AAU put me out of the Olympics. They did it with a set of regulations which nobody—officials and athletes—has bothered to follow for years.

The book, for example, says that $15 a day is the limit for an amateur's hotel and meals. Nobody has paid the slightest attention to this rule for years.

If you are a top name, you get more. Don't get me wrong. Nobody goes around handing you freight cars full of money. In the main, it is chicken feed.

But if you are making a trip from, say Lawrence, Kans., to Stockton, Calif., for a track meet, you are not going to do it at that price.

It is a long way from home to be broke, which is easy to become on that kind of money.

So you are given more—on an automatic basis. And given it by an AAU official.

Strafacci, Carr Bow In Amateur

TROON, Scotland (UP)—Frank Strafacci of Garden City, N.Y., making his seventh bid for the British Amateur golf championship, was ousted by Dr. Frank Deighton of Scotland in a second-round match today, 3 and 2.

Lieut. Joe Golden of Austin, Tex., an air force officer stationed in England, was the first American winner today. He gained the third round by defeating Michael Bonallack of England, 2 and 1.

CARR DEFEATED

Matthew Alexander, a 50-year-old Scot who delivers milk before starting play, pulled the first major surprise of the championship by ousting Ireland's Joe Carr, the 1955 winner, 3 and 2.

Hobart Manley, the long-ball hitter from Savannah, Ga., who was rated one of the top American hopes behind Conrad, bowed out in the second round. He lost to Hugh Squirrel of Wales, 1 up.

Ernest Arend of Deal, 1 up, was eliminated by Herbert Thomson of Scotland, 4 and 3.

Gene Eyster of Buffalo, N.Y., reached the third round with a 2 and 1 victory over Minty Miller of Scotland. Eyster's opponent after lunch will be Ed Walley of Salem, Mass., who defeated Ian MacDonnell of Scotland, 2 and 1.

Peter Grant of Phoenix, Ariz., ousted Merlin Robertson of Montebello, Calif., in an all-American second rounder, 3 and 2.

Clark Hardwick, the Los Angeles golfer who walked into the second round Monday when his opponent scratched, reached the third round by defeating Robert Wight of Scotland, 4 and 3.

Oilmen Get Winning Habit

Re-refined Oil, with Andy McLeary's four-hit pitching clearing the way, trimmed Mary's 10-2, at Heywood Avenue Park Monday night for its first victory of the Victoria Senior "B" Men's Softball League season.

Larry Britton, with two singles and a homer, and Bill Hatcher, with two singles and a bases-loaded triple, led the winners' 13-hit attack.

MARKETS SUMMARY

Gains to $4 In Good Rally

TORONTO (CP)—The stock market marked up a substantial advance in mid-afternoon dealings today, although caution was evident in the comparatively light volume.

Industrials showed their best gains in leading issues, with advances to $4. Steel, motors and refining oils led the upward trend. Mining and western oils issues scored gains up to $1.87.

Aluminum led individual winners with a $4 advance to $123. Algoma Steel was up $2.50 to $98 and Stelco ahead $2.37 at $62.37.

Active and fractionally stronger were Interprovincial Pipe Lines, Bell and Dominion Steel. Losses ranged to $3 by St. Lawrence Corp. $2.25 by International Paper, $1.50 by Canadian Vickers and $1 by the Bank of Commerce.

Mines gained $1 or more in included International Nickel, Gaspe, Steep Rock and Labrador. Eastern Mining, Headway, Nickel, Rim, Quebec Copper and Akron were strong. Scattered uranium advances including Lakeview, up 13 cents. Kerr-Addison gained 9 1/2 in gold.

Calgary and Edmonton led western oils upwards, adding $1.20. Merrill was up 87 cents. Canadian Atlantic moved up 30 cents and Prairie and Peace River 25 cents.

The exchange occurred during Mr. Drew's criticisms of government statements that TransCanada Pipe Lines Ltd. has the only option on 34-inch pipe available for the western leg of its 2,300-mile line to deliver Alberta natural gas to eastern Canada.

Mr. Drew said this large-diameter pipe, manufactured in southern U.S. mills, can be used only for the Canadian project. No other pipeline in the U.S. or Canada was planning to use 34-inch pipe at the present time or in the near future.

Mr. Howe, speaking later, referred to Mr. Drew's statement that if TransCanada did not take up its option on 34-inch pipe now being made in the U.S., the pipe would be available to any other builder of the Canadian line.

The minister said that if TransCanada released its option the pipe would be loaded the next day on ships for the Middle East where it was needed.

MONTREAL (BUP)—A six-day strike at three plants of Price Brothers and Company has been settled with an agreement on wage increases, it was announced today.

Bonds: British 2 1/2% consols $53. British 3 1/2% war loans $71.76. British fundings 4s 1960-90 $89.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market staged a strong rally today to snap off a reaction of more than three weeks.

It was one of the strongest showings of the year with all divisions of the market taking part in the drive ahead.

Gains amounted to one to 4 points. Losses in key areas were almost non-existent.

The rise today was regarded as a result of buying by those who felt that prices had gone down to bargain levels.

Canadian stocks were higher. Aluminum Ltd. advanced 3 1/2. International Nickel 1 1/2. Walker-Gooderham 1 1/2. Hudson Bay Mining 1 1/2. Distillers' Seagrams 1/2. Canadian Pacific 1/2 and Dome Mines 1/2.

On the American stock exchange mixed Canadian issues included Shawinigan, off 2 1/2. Molokite of Canada, off 1 1/2. Brazilian Traction, up 1 1/2, and Eureka and Fargo Oil, both ahead 1 1/2. Great West, up 1 1/2. Jupiter Oil, up 1 1/2. Sapphire Petroleum, up 1 1/2. Rainbow Oil and Wilrich Petroleum each were unchanged.

VANCOUVER—A quiet, dull market, prices remaining same. Fort St. John sold at $11.50 at 76. Vancouver made a sale of 13,000 shares at 9.

Quatsino moved 5.50 at 67. Silbac traded 4.50 at 24.

MONTREAL (CP)—Prices continued to improve in moderate afternoon trading today on the Montreal and Canadian exchanges.

Aluminum regained the four points it lost Monday to lead the base metals to higher ground. International Nickel was a point better.

Steels were strong as Stelco climbed 1 1/2 and Algoma a point. Great Lakes jumped two points in the papers.

Mines were improved in a five-cent range with Monty, New Jacquet and Quebec Smelters up.

Howe, Drew Disagree On Steel

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe and Opposition Leader Drew disagreed Monday night in the Commons on the availability of steel.

Mr. Drew said during the pipeline debate that steel in the United States no longer is in short supply as a result of cutbacks in automobile production there. Some steel companies now were trying to find new users of steel.

Mr. Howe promptly said he has been trying to get steel in the U.S. and asked whether Mr. Drew could name a single mill that could supply him.

"Could my honorable friend ask one of these (steel) salesmen to call on me?" Mr. Howe asked.

The exchange occurred during Mr. Drew's criticisms of government statements that TransCanada Pipe Lines Ltd. has the only option on 34-inch pipe available for the western leg of its 2,300-mile line to deliver Alberta natural gas to eastern Canada.

$32 Million Gas Pipe Order Given U.K. Firm Gets Top Job

LONDON (CP)—A $32,000,000 contract for steel piping for TransCanada Pipe Lines Ltd. has been awarded to a British firm, it was announced Monday.

The contract was signed in New York last Thursday with South Durham Steel and Iron Company Ltd., a British firm which has another pipeline order from the Westcoast Transmission Company.

Delivery of the first piping will be in May, 1957, and the contract is expected to be completed by July, 1959.

Asked about the controversy raging in Canada over the pipeline company's financing, a company official said:

"The contract is with the pipeline company, not the government."

Altogether 636 miles of 30-inch diameter piping will be used for the centre section of the natural gas line from Winnipeg to North Bay, Ont.

Last October, South Durham received a $12,000,000 contract for the natural gas pipeline linking Fort St. John, B.C., and Vancouver, R.A. Butler, then chancellor of the exchequer, said it was the "biggest single contract" a British company ever gained in Canada.

TORONTO (CP)—TransCanada Pipe Lines Ltd. hopes to buy at least one-half of the piping needed for construction of the Winnipeg-to-Toronto section of the natural gas pipeline from Canadian firms, executive vice-president Charles Coates said today.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—David S. Holbrook, 44, executive vice-president of Algoma Steel Corporation, has been elected president of the steel empire built by the late Sir James Dunn, the board announced today.

The company also announced the election of two other top-level officials of subsidiary companies.

George W. MacLeod, vice-president and general manager of Algoma Ore Properties which operate the giant Helen mine at nearby Michipicoten, has been elected president of that organization.

Horace J. Allen, vice-president and general manager of the Canadian Furnace Company was named chairman.

'HIGH PERFORMANCE' SAYS HAIG-BROWN

Amateur Magistrate Makes No Apologies

VANCOUVER (CP)—Magistrates should be amateurs, not well-paid men with legal training, Roderick Haig-Brown of Campbell River told the annual conference of B.C. magistrates here Monday.

The noted fisherman-author-magistrate said: "As long as this is an amateur business, people have to go into it with the sense of a call of duty. And I believe there is a high level of performance, even if it is not as good in law as if you paid for it."

Mr. Haig-Brown has been a stipendiary magistrate at Campbell River for 16 years.

The payment of fines to magistrates he said was against the "dignity of the bench."

A movement is now afoot to give stipendiary magistrates definite salaries.

Several magistrates at the conference have had no legal training.

Deputy attorney-general H. Alan Maclean told the magistrates that a sentencing judge should be careful to see that he is not exposed to public criticism that there is a "law for the rich and a law for the poor."

"A man should not be able to buy his way out of prison," said Mr. Maclean.

There had been criticism that people unable to afford fines for minor offences suffer the humiliation of prison while the more affluent offender goes free.

Municipal Clerks Elect New Slate Of Officers

North Vancouver city clerk, R. G. Gibbs, Monday was elected president of the Municipal Officers' Association of B.C. in convention at the Empress Hotel.

He succeeds Vancouver city clerk Ronald Thompson.

C. W. R. Harper, Nelson clerk-treasurer, was elected vice-president, and R. E. King, Port Coquitlam city clerk, remains as secretary-treasurer.

Directors are A. D. Corker, Campbell River clerk-treasurer and R. S. Freeman, Mission clerk-treasurer, representing villages; Adolphe VandeCasteyen, North Cowichan clerk, Vancouver Island; R. N. Chester, Surrey city clerk, and Frank Pohl, Coquitlam clerk, lower mainland; Ian Garven, Vernon city clerk, and G. H. Andrews, Penticton city clerk, the remainder of B.C.

Supervisor of municipalities J. D. Baird told delegates that under the proposed new municipal act, first draft of which has already been prepared, surpluses from one year to another will have to be put forward into some type of reserve fund.

This would eliminate the practice of using a surplus of one year as revenue for the next.

Deputy municipal affairs minister J. Everett Brown said "we are trying to make it possible and to encourage municipalities to adopt modern financial methods."

TRAFFIC DEATHS UP 58% OVER LAST YEAR

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney-General Robert Bonner urged British Columbia magistrates Monday to seek some uniformity in handling of traffic delinquents.

Speaking at a conference of magistrates, he said that traffic deaths in B.C. have jumped 58 per cent in the first quarter of the year compared with the same period last year.

He urged magistrates to discuss the situation.

You Took Off by Yourself When He Learned to Fly

The 82nd man in England to hold a Royal Aero Club flying licence, Group Captain W. H. Dolphin, RAF (ret.) is a visitor in Victoria from his home at Hove, England.

Group Captain Dolphin learned to fly in the days when your first solo was also your first flight. He picked up his flying knowledge in a single-place monoplane; therefore no instructor could accompany him on his first airborne trip.

"You taxied-up and down the air strip until you felt confident enough to take off; then you were a flyer," he explains.

In 1916, he was seconded to the RAF, and decided to become a career air force officer. He served through both world wars, and retired in 1945.

He is visiting his sister, Mrs. L. B. Lund, 230 Pemberton.

Forest Probe Seen Resuming By June 11

The Sloan Royal Commission on forestry has been tentatively adjourned until June 11 for final evidence.

"Resumption of inquiry on that date depends on whether the evidence required is available," a commission spokesman said today.

Hearing of this evidence, which has to do with forest management finances, is expected to last only one day after which the commission will adjourn until June 18 for legal argument lasting a week or more.

35 VOLUMES

The final report by Chief Justice Sloan is not expected until September or October, as the chief justice will have to review some 35 bound volumes of evidence containing 18,000 pages of typescript.

The hearings adjourned last week with concluding evidence by Dr. C. D. Orchard, chief B.C. government forester, who told the commission he had no knowledge of a "huge conspiracy" to wreck forest legislation in B.C.

His statement was in contradiction to that of his former minister, R. E. Sommers, who resigned his cabinet post.

Victoria College Student Awarded Gyro Scholarship

DICK POMEROY

Eighteen-year-old Richard J. Pomeroy of Victoria College has been named Gyro Club scholarship winner of the year.

The Gyro award of $200 is for scholarship, leadership and ability and merit in sports.

Club members approved the college recommendation Monday. Young Pomeroy last year won the $150 Horace Heidt scholarship at Victoria High where he was president of the students' council.

He lives here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Pomeroy, at 2526 Scott.

8,000 Ottawans Attend Anglican Celebrations

OTTAWA (CP)—Approximately 8,000 persons, including six bishops, attended diamond jubilee celebrations of the Anglican diocese of Ottawa at the auditorium here Sunday night.

Principal speaker at the rally, described by organizers as the largest Anglican rally in the capital during the last quarter century—was Right Rev. Joost de Blank, suffragan bishop of Stepey, London.

Urging his audience to be more militant Christians, the British bishop said: "Some Christians are living as chickens when they ought to be eagles."

Church dignitaries present included Rt. Rev. G. A. Wells, retired former bishop of Cariboo, B. C.

first tire of its kind

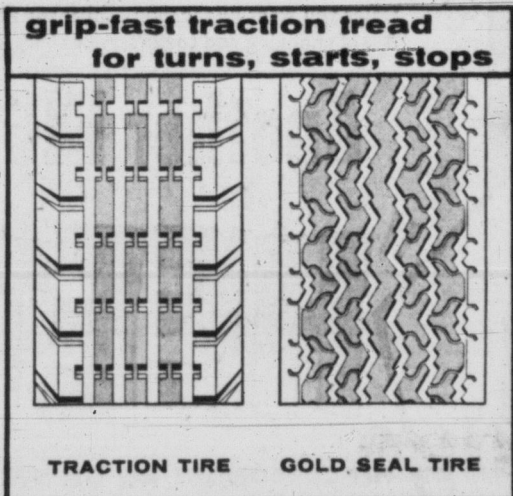

Rolling freely, turning, braking or accelerating...

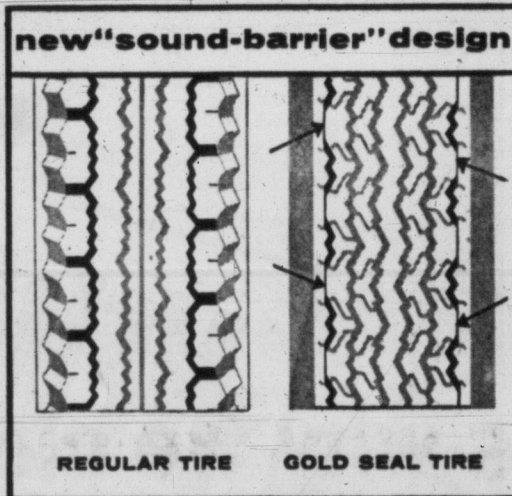

New Dunlop Gold Seal is the first tire that changes its tread design instantly, automatically to meet every driving requirement.

At left is a tire designed to roll freely on the highway and give long mileage. Note the solid circular ribs. On Dunlop Gold Seal Tires the tread is closed when you're rolling, forming seven solid ribs that ride smoothly over any surface with minimum wear, maximum mileage.

Traction Tires have large, irregular blocks for extra grip. The instant you apply the brakes or accelerate, the Gold Seal tread opens up into hundreds of traction sections with thousands of edges that grip in all directions.

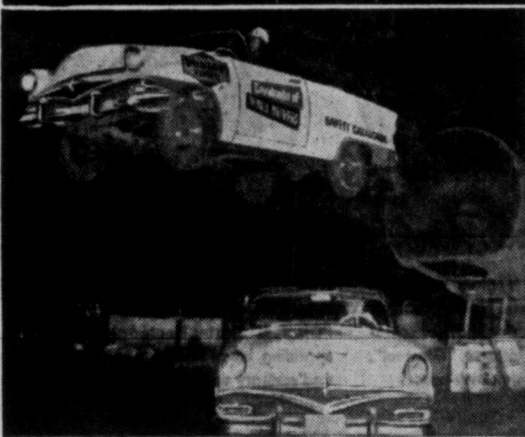

Regular Tires without sound frequency stabilizers or sound barriers generate high pitch squeal on corners. In Gold Seal "Sound-Barrier" design, special stabilizers support the outside ribs, allow a minimum of movement, prevent annoying corner squeal. You'll be amazed at the silence of Gold Seal Tires.

Ordinary tires have protruding patterns on the shoulders. These tend to catch on ruts, holes, car tracks... cause wheel flutter, steering rumble. Gold Seal tires have a smooth streamlined shoulder which rides over ruts, gives steady steering control.

Just like stunt drivers... you can bet your life on DUNLOP Gold Seal Tires

Stunt drivers in Canada's great Cavalcade of Thrill Drivers all use Dunlop Gold Seal Tires. They say they're the safest things on wheels. In stunts like this tires take a terrific beating, and a blow-out could mean disaster. In thousands of rugged stunt tests no Thrill Driver has ever been let down by his Dunlop Tires.

The tires on your car will never get the high speed, high impact pounding that Gold Seal Tires are given by Thrill Drivers in stunts like this. They prove that Gold Seal Tires give you a huge margin of safety. Just like Thrill Drivers... you can bet your life on Dunlop Gold Seal.

Because Dunlop Gold Seal Tires automatically change their tread to meet every driving condition, you get perfect driving control on any surface, anywhere. Immediate, powerful grip-fast traction means safe stops and fast starts in city traffic... even when roads are wet.

Tests here in British Columbia prove that, on the highway, climbing steep hills or riding on rough country roads, Dunlop Gold Seal Tires give you smooth steering control, grip the road firmly even on fast turns. For better value and tires built to overcome your own road conditions, buy Dunlop Gold Seals.

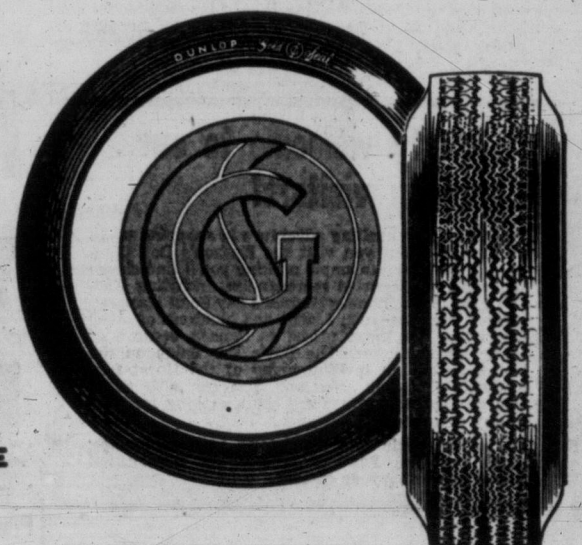

VALUE AT EVERY PRICE
Dunlop makes better value tires in every price range.

Capt. Collings, Skilled Shot, Dies at 73

Capt. Herbert (Lottie) Collings, MBE, one of Canada's top marksmen and a well-known soldier, died suddenly at his 514 Lamson Street residence Saturday. He was 73 years old.

A keen marksman, Capt. Collings served 20 times with the B.C. team in Ottawa, and on two occasions served as a member of the Canadian team which participated in Commonwealth competitions in Biscay, England. In 1929, he tied for first place in the grand aggregate in the Biscay competition.

For 30 years he was secretary of the B.C. Rifle Association. And in the old days he was an ardent golfer. He held the club championship at the old Macaulay golf course for several years.

Born in East Looe, Cornwall, England, Capt. Collings came to Esquimalt with the Imperial Army, Royal Garrison Artillery, in 1905.

He transferred to the Canadian army when Canada took over garrison defences in Esquimalt and Halifax, and had been a resident of Victoria for 50 years.

He is survived by one son, Squadron Leader H. W. Collings of the RCAF.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 1.30 p.m. in Esquimalt United Church. Rev. D. R. Pilkey will officiate. Cremation will follow.

Servicemen Sign Up For BCHIS

A total of 288 servicemen have signed up for the provincial government's new B.C. Hospital Insurance Service coverage plan for the dependents of armed forces personnel.

They paid a total of $3,240 to enter the scheme.

"No claims have been processed yet," an official of the health and welfare department said today.

Under the plan, servicemen can obtain hospital insurance coverage for their dependents without waiting until they have been in the province a year.

They are required to pay $10 for a wife and $2.50 for each child, with a maximum payment of $20. Servicemen who have been in the province for six months or more pay half.

Registered so far are 113 navy wives and 157 children; 114 army wives and 168 children; 61 air force wives and 67 children.

First 25 Art Awards Made by Koerner Fund

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Leon Thea Koerner Foundation Monday announced its first awards—25 totalling $37,000.

Top award is $5,000 "toward development of offerings in drama at the University of B.C." The grants were announced by Dean G. C. Andrews, projects committee chairman at the university.

Sums of $3,000 each go to the Vancouver Community Arts Council, the Art Gallery, Symphony Society, and for the establishment of a student grants-in-aid fund and a UBC faculty members' leave-of-absence fund.

They are the first awards since the foundation was established last year with a $1,000,000 gift from Leon Koerner, retired president of Alaska Pine Ltd., and Mrs. Koerner.

Two thousand dollars is given for the establishment of a new department of fine arts at the university; $1,500 is to purchase a collection for the museum of anthropology; $2,000 is

Tractor Plunges Into Water; Driver Swims Up

NANAIMO — Tractor driver Julius Morris narrowly missed death on the weekend when his heavy machine plunged down an 18-foot bank and carried him six feet under water.

Morris had been clearing land at Brechin point when a bank caved in under his tractor. His left foot was caught between a brake pedal and clutch lever, but he pulled his foot free of his shoe and swam to the surface.

The machine was salvaged four hours later.

Dear contributors to the support of the Old Jokes home and, in fact, Dear All Readers:
I need your help and advice.
I think I have made up a NEW joke.
I would like you to peruse same, and then let me know (a) if it is a NEW joke, or (b) if it is a joke.
Joke starts (writ by hand by me.)

The psychiatrist's nurse showed the patient into the office, and saw that he was comfortable on the consulting couch. Then she went into the next room and reported to the psychiatrist "Your next patient, doctor, thinks he is a parrot."

"A simple case of reverse anthropomorphism," said the doctor. "I'll have him straightened out in no time."

So the doctor went into the consulting room lowered the shades, turned the lights down low, and talked to the patient in a soothing voice.

"What seems to be the trouble?" asked the psychiatrist. "Polly wants a cracker," said the patient.

"Crackers, indeed, have their merits," said the doctor, trying to gain the confidence of the patient, "but then, so do bacon and eggs, potatoes and gravy, pork and beans. By the way," asked the doctor, slyly, "which do you prefer?"

"Polly wants a cracker," said the patient.

So the doctor dropped the subject of food and tried Topic A. "What do you like best about girls?" asked the doctor. "Their faces? Hands? Hair? Minds? Laughter? Talk?"

"Polly wants a cracker," said the patient.

In desperation, the doctor tried again. "If you were offered a choice between a date with Marilyn Munro and a cracker, which would you take?" he asked.

Without hesitation, the patient replied: "Polly wants a cracker."

The doctor jumped to his feet in disgust. "I give up," he said to the nurse. "Never in all the 40 years I have been a practicing psychiatrist have I seen such a stubborn fixation."

"This patient," added the doctor, "is completely convinced he is a parrot."

The nurse looked at the patient thoughtfully. "Could it be because he is a parrot?" she asked.

End of joke.

ENTOMOLOGIST William Webb shows damage done by one Gold Coast ambrosia beetle. They manufacture sawdust from hardwood at alarming rate.

BUSY BEETLE

Gold Coast Bug Bounced By City Man

By TONY DICKSON

This is a boring story, but read on, read on.

It's about the ambrosia beetle of the Gold Coast, and William Webb of Victoria, who has been studying them there the past three-and-one-half years.

Mr. Webb, an entomologist, worked for the British Colonial Research Service on Africa's west coast.

In his studies he found the ambrosia bores through 15 per cent of the Gold Coast's number two export, timber.

The beetle is a tough little customer and chomps, apparently without headaches, through ebony and mahogany.

They don't eat the wood; just kick it out for a place to live and hatch more beetles.

One beetle can toss out a handful of sawdust before you can say "mahogany is extremely hard wood," Mr. Webb reports.

When Mr. Webb walked ashore on the Gold Coast, nobody knew much about the ambrosia beetle. It wasn't even named. Job was to study its habits, and find a spray to knock off ambrosia.

Ordinary bug-bashing sprays don't stand up under heavy rainfall and high evaporation. So Mr. Webb and assistants came up with a spray that would.

The ambrosia beetle was named from a peculiar fungus in the beetle nest, deep in the heart of hardwood, on which larvae feed.

TASTED GOOD

Some researcher tasted it, and it tasted good. "Ambrosia," he breathed, "food for the gods."

Thus, the ambrosia beetle. Mr. Webb had headquarters at Kumasi, 200 miles inland, where there were 400 whites and 72,000 natives.

He arrived here Monday after a three-week trip from Africa, and is visiting the month at the home of his parents, 1751 Davie.

Mr. Webb has yet to make a final decision as to whether or not he will start teaching this fall, forest biology, at New York University in Syracuse.

Anti-Vogee Drive Denied by Teacher

A Mount Newton High School teacher today denied ever having attempted to influence students against the school principal, Arthur E. Vogee, who is appealing his dismissal by Saanich school board from the principalship.

The teacher was a witness at today's sitting of a board of reference called to hear Mr. Vogee's appeal against the school board's decision.

"Do you know anything about a petition favoring Mr. Vogee that was circulated among students," the witness was asked by Victor Dryer, counsel for Mr. Vogee.

"It has been suggested to me that you told students in your class that they would get detention if they signed the petition," Mr. Dryer said.

"That's not so," the teacher said.

Mr. Dryer asked the witness if the staff, with one exception, had agreed this year that they were satisfied with conditions and intended to stay at the school.

"It doesn't ring a bell at all," he was told.

A second teacher called to the stand today told J. Alan Baker, counsel for the school board, that he had given no thought to a transfer, but would prefer not to continue working under Mr. Vogee as principal.

NOT AS PRINCIPAL

"I think highly of Mr. Vogee as a man and as a teacher," he said. "I would like to be associated with him in another capacity, but not with him as principal. I don't think he is capable as an administrator."

At Monday's sitting a third staff member said he was not prepared to continue teaching at Mount Newton if Mr. Vogee remained as principal.

He was not satisfied with the general tone of the school, he said, and had found students showing little respect for the school administration.

Still another teacher said in previous sittings of the board that he did not want to continue teaching at the school under Mr. Vogee.

"It's not a particularly happy place to be teaching," he said.

Molar Inspection First Chore For New Kindergarten Kiddies

By PETE LOUDON

Greater Victoria's expected 1,700 new grade one and kindergarten pupils won't start classes until September but they'll go to school twice before then—once to register and once to see the dentist.

An expansion in school dentistry was announced by the school board today. A new $4,000 dental unit and x-ray unit has been set up at North Ward school and applications are being received for an additional dentist and dental assistant, both to work on a part-time basis starting in December.

There is a clinic now in almost every school in the area and Dr. Hugh Clarke and Dr. David Parfitt circulate among them.

Thanks to booming candy sales and swelling school enrolments their schedules are well filled and so it seems are teeth of Greater Victoria youth.

An average five or six-year-old has five to six dental defects on first school examination. The average 14-year-old has experienced 14 cavities, which with parental co-operation are largely filled.

The same Johnny Average can figure to have lost 10 of his final set of teeth by the time he is 40.

The school dentists are so busy that this year's crop of new pupils will have their examinations delayed until July.

Every youngster in the schools from kindergarten to grade 12 has periodic examinations. Grades one, two and three get checked twice a year and parents are invited to attend.

The dentists limit their work to examination except in some special cases and where emergency work is necessary, except in kindergarten and grade one where the board pays for treatment.

Usually though, parents are advised by card when cavities are noted. The dentists say in almost every case parents take the youngster then to a family dentist and have the necessary work carried out.

Doctors Clarke and Parfitt feel most of their work is educative and through the children hope to reach the parents. The home is the best place to fight tooth decay, they say, pointing out that in 87 per cent of the cases they see, decay is due to faulty diet.

Rowdyism Curb Ordered in City

Speeding, Vandalism On Yates Face Crackdown

A police clamp-down on rowdyism and "speedway" driving on Yates Street was promised following complaints to a city police commission meeting today.

City lawyer, J. G. McIntosh, appeared on behalf of the 700-Block Yates Association. He said rowdyism and vandalism during evenings on Yates between Blanshard and Douglas was at a point where merchants were willing to co-operate with police.

Fear of reprisals had made some merchants reluctant to file complaints, he said.

"Some reprisals have taken place . . . bent car aerials and broken windows."

MORE POLICE

The group asked extra police be assigned to the area. Commissioner William Hamilton told reporters after the meeting special steps will be taken and the patrol on Yates will be doubled if necessary.

Chief trouble occurs from gangs of youths in their late teens and early 20s who gather before store doorways passing remarks at passersby and carrying on running repartee with others across the street, or with groups who cruise up and down in cars. The association did not specifically list incidents of vandalism.

"Yates Street is like a speedway, drivers are defying police. I would like to see a campaign to clean it up," said Commissioner Gordon Carter.

Chief John Blackstock blamed most of the noise on "smitty" mufflers, on cars with noisy contrivances on tail pipes and on cars with no mufflers.

(There were six convictions for inadequate mufflers last month in the downtown area.)

CURB THEM

"There is an element which hangs around that street which should be curbed," agreed Mayor Percy Scourrah.

Chief Blackstock felt some Yates Street restaurant owners " . . . brought this thing on themselves. They encourage them to come in."

The commission will ask proprietors to phone police at the first sign of trouble.

Commissioner Hamilton indicated the order to officers will be to keep the rowdy elements moving.

"They can't make trouble unless they loiter."

Police School Plan Revived By Wurtele

New efforts to set up a greater Victoria police training school will be undertaken soon.

Victoria police commission received a letter from Esquimalt reeve A. C. Wurtele requesting that discussions conducted by district police commissions in 1955 be revived.

The city commission will advise Esquimalt commission it is willing to go further into the matter.

Reeve Wurtele said he felt police chiefs from Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt should meet under chairmanship of city chief John Blackstock to give the matter further study and make recommendations.

At present the city holds police training classes periodically and though other district officers have been invited, pressure of duty has meant many officers have only received on-the-job training.

Swansdown in Pastels
Captures Ladies' Fancies

By PENNY SAVER

Such elegance! It's worthy of the prettiest dressing table, and the most feminine of women. Swansdown in pastels—what could be more delicate and soft? Powder puffs for bath talcum come in a variety of sizes, and a wealth of pastels. Mauve, pink, yellow, blue, green and white masses of swansdown have knobs of flowers in matching colors. Hold the puff of luxury by the flowers. Packed in plastic gift boxes, they are $1.85, $2.55 and $4.50. Smaller ones, oh, so soft and whispery, are 65, 75, 85 cents, $1.50, and there's even a purse sized puff for make-up, at 25 cents. One lovely one has an attached floral chiffon scarf that tucks daintily around the puff, keeping it fresh and clean when not being used.

On a plastic brush handle painted with pink posies is a large round of down, priced at $2.55. A special gift for a bride is the white or blue powder puff on a satin-bound long handle. A satin bow and frosted flowers decorates the top. This one is also $2.55. Imported from England, they're reappearing and being well received by women who enjoy owning feminine accessories.

Did you know that there are such people as soap collectors? I discovered it recently when I found, inside a box of novelty soap, a note for soap collectors, informing them of the wide selection of carved soaps.

A part of the selection I found on the same counter, and before I had moved on I was almost numbered among said collectors. Such saucy faces on the animals, and clever ideas shown in the novelty items are very tempting. Three wee pink piglets with pink blossoms hand painted on their backs are $1.50. Three kittens, poodles or bears are the same price. An indigestible hamburger that looks real enough to warrant a large bite, or a hot dog with the same real-like look costs $1.50. The same price is a egg of bright yellow corn.

For those of you who are going to travel, no matter how far, this summer, the box of oh-jingo soap will solve washing problems. Squares of sweet-smelling soap can be used to wash lingerie or you. Just wet the soap squares and in no time at all there will be fragrant, soft suds to do the job. A box of 48 squares is $1.50.

Don't make extra work for yourself by hunting through town for the items mentioned. Do it the easy way, and call me at 2-3131. I'll gladly tell you the names of the stores where I have found items mentioned in the column.

IODE Members Spent 2,080 Hours
Last Year Welcoming Immigrants

QUEBEC (CP)—Members of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire last year put in a busy time helping immigrants landing at Canadian ports. In addition to welcoming the newcomers they distributed coffee, milk and biscuits.

Mrs. G. L. Hamilton of Windsor, Ont., national immigration and Canadianization convener, told the IODE annual meeting Tuesday that members last year spent 2,080 hours working at the docks. They handed out 1,204 pounds of biscuits, served 65,000 cups of coffee and 25,280 glasses of milk.

"Members did outstanding work at the country's busiest immigrant port, Quebec," said Mrs. Hamilton.

Chapters in every province contributed to the work by making scrap books from used Christmas cards to give to immigrant children. Members co-operated in the activities of citizenship committees and held conversational English classes. Many also acted as baby sitters to permit mothers to attend language classes.

"These classes provide the newcomer with an opportunity to practice English and meet old Canadians in an informal atmosphere," said Mrs. Hamilton.

IODE immigrant work included visiting new Canadian patients in hospitals, she said.

WORK INCREASING

Mrs. Hamilton said the work of presenting greeting cards to new citizens was going to be increasingly heavy for the next few years, following the peak which has been reached in immigrants since the Second World War. More than 18,000 cards were issued last year.

In the national Commonwealth relations report, Mrs. C. M. Scott of Peterborough, Ont., said that scrap books from used Christmas cards were paid in grants to two Indian and one Pakistani nursing and medical students, who came here to take courses.

In February this year, four bursaries of $150 each were awarded

TO BANFF—Mrs. Mary Groszek, president, Canadian Dental Nurses and Assistants Association, will travel to Banff Friday, to preside at the Canadian Dental Nurses and Assistants Association Convention at Banff Springs Hotel. Other Victorians travelling to the convention are Miss Elsie MacMacDonald, president, British Columbia Dental Assistants Association; Miss Jean MacGregor and Mrs. Gail Fulton.

It's fashionable to wear white linen sheath frocks, given an expensive look by beautiful open-work embroidery.

Delegates—Mrs. E. Mossop was appointed official delegate to the provincial women's institute conference in Vancouver; and Mrs. E. Emery was appointed alternate, at the regular meeting of the Colwood Women's Institute. Report on the spring tea showed that $200 had been realized, which will go towards the work of the institute and the WI building fund to provide larger quarters for meetings. Plans were also discussed for the country fair to be held in September in Colwood Hall.

Panel on 'Assimilation' Agrees
Canadians Must Help Immigrants

Members of the Local Council of Women heard an informative panel discussion on "The Assimilation of Newcomers to Canada," yesterday, in the Music Room of the Public Library.

First speaker, lawyer, Forrest L. Shaw, told the meeting, "I think we should consider why we are encouraging immigration. At the end of the war, we had to find some way to develop our natural resources. With the large expanse of unpopulated areas in Canada it was our duty to encourage people to come from over-congested parts of the world. It was our duty to help them better their standards of living."

"Our biggest error was letting large numbers of non-English speaking people from one country live together in one area. In some places there are now three generations of these people, and none speak English," said Mr. Shaw.

"Canada has not agreed to non-restricted immigration. I think we should retain the right to select people, to share our heritage," he concluded.

Dr. Edith Lucas, director of high school correspondence, department of education, felt that language was the greatest problem met by the immigrant.

"Without being able to speak the language correctly, he cannot feel adequate in his new country," she said.

"It is the language which prevents the immigrant from taking up the same work he held in his own country. He is pushed into jobs which require no skill, until he can overcome this obstacle."

Dr. Lucas stressed that the community must provide means for the immigrant to improve his English, as "skill in English is the first step to adjustment." "The main factor of assimilation is happiness," said Mrs. Paul Bisseley, secretary of the Greater Victoria Citizenship Council.

"It is easier for the husband and children to adjust than it is for the woman," she said. "At work and school the husband and children are constantly mixing with Canadians, learning the language and ways of the country. But the woman has less opportunity to mix. She must rely on her neighbors for her assimilation. I feel that women's organizations should do more to encourage immigrant women to join them and adjust."

John Dorman, retired inspector-in-chief, Department of Immigration, said:

"Not all Canadians want immigrants. However, we must remember that these people were brought here with the blessing of our government. Therefore, if we have any complaints, they should be directed against the government, and not the immigrants."

"Having brought immigrants here we must do something for them. I think churches and parent-teacher groups should encourage them to join their ranks, but the greatest contribution should come from the individual."

Mrs. E. E. Livesey was chairman for the panel discussion and president; Mrs. Lillian Johns, conducted the meeting.

Treasurer, Mrs. N. Mortimer, announced that proceeds from the coffee party were $30.10. Those with articles to be picked up were asked to call Mrs. A. J. Butterfield reported Mrs. J. Smith, 3-4048.

Quiet Wedding in Naden Chapel

Of interest to many friends is the marriage that took place quietly at 1 o'clock today in the chapel in HMCS Naden of Mrs. Elizabeth McDonald to Lt. Cdr. C. P. Morgan, RCN. Mrs. McDonald is the elder daughter of Hon. W. C. Woodward and Mrs. Woodward. The bride's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. C. N. W. Woodward, and her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. White, came from Vancouver for the ceremony, which was attended only by members of the family. Padre Todd officiated.

By Plane From New Brunswick

Mrs. Peter Noble with Peter and Roddy, has come by air from Moncton, N.B., to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Bell, at their home on Central Avenue. The young family will spend two months in Victoria.

Before the June Ball

Dr. and Mrs. N. B. Reilly, 2357 Pacific Avenue, will entertain at their home prior to the June Ball in HMCS Naden, Friday evening. Their guests will be Surgeon-Capt. and Mrs. T. Blair McLean, Dr. and Mrs. Alec Gunning, Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Alley, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Gonnason, Dr. and Mrs. G. J. McKenzie, Surgeon Lt.-Cdr. and Mrs. W. M. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Howland, Dr. and Mrs. R. M. Peet, Mrs. Nancy Donegan and Mr. Gordon Clarry, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Price and Dr. and Mrs. T. H. Patterson.

First Visit to Canada

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Privett arrived in Victoria from England on Monday to visit the former's brother, Mr. A. C. Privett, Royal Roads. It is the first time that Mr. and Mrs. Privett have visited Canada and, the first time that the two brothers have seen each other for 23 years. They will remain in Victoria for five or six weeks.

Visitor From Hove

Group Capt. W. H. Dolphin, who is visiting in Victoria at present from Hove, Eng., is the guest of his sister, Mrs. L. B. Lund, 930 Pemberton Road. He expects to be in the city for two months.

A 93rd Birthday

On the occasion of her 93rd birthday, Mrs. J. McCarthy was honored Monday with a luncheon and bridge, given by Mrs. A. H. MacLachlan at her home on Newport Avenue. The honor guest is the widow of Mr. J. McCarthy, former librarian of Carnegie Library in Winnipeg. She now lives in Victoria at 857 McClure Street. Other guests at the party were former Winnipeg residents, all old friends of Mrs. McCarthy.

Graduation Tea

Mrs. R. T. Wallace and Mrs. H. H. Youson entertained at tea at the home of the latter, 875 Richmond Road, to honor their daughters, Misses Barbara Wallace and Barbara Youson, on the occasion of their graduation from Victoria High School. Guests were fellow graduates, their mothers and several teachers. The tea table was centred by a bowl of white and pink carnations flanked by tall white candles. Teachers presiding at the tea table were Miss L. B. Maxwell and Miss J. C. Roberts. Other teachers present were Miss Norma Douglas and Mrs. H. Hodson. Classmates present were Misses June Rumsby, JoAnn Crawford, Grace Chamberlain, Pam Bingham, Arlene Pratt, Sheila Taylor, Peggy White, Fran Rigby, Barbara Geddes, Joanne Dawson, Sharon Tench, Marion Roome, Bari Worthington and Peggy White.

Choir Party

Centennial United Church parlor was gaily decorated recently when members of the choir entertained in honor of Miss Darlene Talbot, whose marriage to Mr. Alison Hill takes place in early June. The honor guest, her mother, Mrs. H. Talbot, and the groom-elect's mother, Mrs. J. W. Hill, received corsages. Mrs. W. Hooson and Miss Gladys Campbell, who are to be bridal attendants, assisted with the many gifts. Games were enjoyed and refreshments served from a table covered with a lace cloth and centred with a cake decorated with "Best Wishes, Al and Darlene, From the Choir," flanked by tall pink candles. Mrs. Paul Naftel poured tea.

New Exemplars Welcomed in Beta Sigma Phi Sorority

Four years of study in the Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority was culminated for 11 young Victorians Monday evening when they were welcomed into Exemplar Chapter.

The ceremony, in full candlelight, was held in the lower lounge of the Oak Bay Beach Hotel, following an Exemplar Day banquet in the main dining room. Mrs. Maude Gordon, cultural director of City Council, conducted the impressive rites and at the conclusion presented each girl with her Exemplar pin. Mrs. Mary Youson and Miss Doreen Waller gave each new Exemplar a yellow rosebud, the sorority flower, while Mrs. Barbara Brown sang "Only a Rose."

New Exemplars are Miriam Armstrong, Wilma Bonnell, Aileen Bridger, Cathy Garrett, Dorothy Gemmell, Pat Hamilton, Betsy Harrison, Joan Houghton, Gwen Leacock, Ethel Orr and Mamie Wallace.

Sale of Raw Milk Topic at CAC Meeting

Dr. C. Elizabeth Mahaffy, medical health officer for Victoria and Esquimalt, answered questions and explained aspects of the new Milk Act, at the Canadian Association of Consumers meeting Monday evening.

Dr. Mahaffy clarified points concerning the sale of raw milk in Victoria and the new Milk Act. She explained the present method of inspection of raw milk and showed the basic differences between raw and pasteurized milk.

"In the event of the new Milk Act being passed, and all milk having to be pasteurized, local dairies at present selling raw milk would not be drastically affected," Dr. Mahaffy stated, "because they could still sell the milk to depots for pasteurization."

There are seven raw milk dairies in Victoria.

During the meeting, there was an interesting and enlightening measures display and survey, a joint program of the design committee, CAC and the National Industrial Design Council, Ottawa. Metal, plastic, glass and enamel measuring cups, scoops and spoons were displayed, with various features well demonstrated through comparison with other measures of comparable prices. Members completed a five-page questionnaire dealing with types of measures owned, use made of measuring cups, accuracy of measures, method of measuring and accuracy in marking. The opinions, suggestions and information will be compiled to assist designers.

Notice to Electrical Contractors

CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS
WESTERN REGION
Sealed tenders will be received at the office of the Chief Engineer, Winnipeg, until two o'clock, Central Standard Time, in the afternoon of Tuesday, June 19, 1956, for the construction of a street and car department building at Vancouver, British Columbia.
Plans, specifications and form of contract may be seen and form of contract obtained from the office of the Chief Engineer, Winnipeg, District Engineers at Vancouver and Edmonton, and Division Engineers at Victoria, Kamloops and Calgary.
Tenders will not be considered unless made on form supplied by the Railway and accompanied by an accepted cheque drawn on a chartered bank in Canada in favour of Canadian National Railways, equal to five per cent of the total amount of the tender.
No bid bonds will be accepted with tenders for this work.
The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.
J. R. McMillan,
Vice-President.
Winnipeg, Manitoba.

SEALED TENDERS, endorsed "Tender for Electrical Alterations to Office Building at 1015 Langley Street, Victoria, B.C." will be received by the Chairman of the Liquor Control Board of British Columbia, Victoria, B.C., up to 11:00 a.m. on Monday the 19th day of June 1956, and opened in public at that time and place.
Plans, Specifications, and Form of Tender may be obtained on and after the 28th May, 1956 from Simpson & McGregor, Consulting Electrical Engineers, 1015 Langley St., Victoria, B.C. on deposit of the sum of Ten Dollars ($10.00) for each set, which will be refunded upon return of plans, etc., in good condition within a period of one month of awarding the contract, except in the case of the successful tenderer where the plan deposit is not refundable.
Each tender must be accompanied by a certified cheque on a chartered bank of Canada, made payable to the Chairman of the Liquor Control Board, for the sum of ten percent (10%) of the amount of the tender price, which shall be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into the contract when called upon to do so.
Tenders must be made out on the form supplied, signed with the actual signature of the tenderer, and enclosed in the envelope furnished.
No tender will be considered having any qualifying clause whatsoever, and the lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

RAIN BEST PITCH

Weatherman Alone Stops Dale, Mickey

NEW YORK (AP)—There's a veteran pitcher dampening the spirits of some major league batters. Actually, he appears to be the only guy who can stop Mickey Mantle and Dale Long, baseball's most prolific hitters the past couple of weeks.
He's a threat all the time, particularly on a cloudy day.
He's old man weather.
This rough old gent caused the postponements Sunday of games involving New York Yankees and Pittsburgh Pirates. That meant that Mantle and Long could not get a chance to add to their already impressive accomplishments.
Here's the way they've hit since May 13:
AB H HR RBI Pct.
Mantle, Yanks 47 23 6 18 .489
Long, Pirates 37 17 7 21 .458

French Colt Epsom Choice

LONDON (AP)—The French colt, Lavandin, Monday was listed as the 5-to-1 favorite to win the Epsom Derby, June 6.

Tenarez received heavy backing and dropped to 20 to 1 in the latest call-over of odds at the Victoria Club. Queen Elizabeth's Atlas, 68 to 1 a week ago, was cut to 40 to 1.

Other odds quoted by London's bookmakers, a legal occupation in England, were:

WORSLEY UNDER KNIFE

NEW YORK (CP)—Lorne (Gump) Worsley, goaltender for New York Rangers, will undergo surgery Thursday for the removal of a torn cartilage in his right knee. He injured the knee late in the season and was forced to miss two of the playoff games with Montreal Canadiens.

Only One Top Peak Unclimbed

KATMANDU, Nepal (Reuters)—Only one of the world's top 10 mountain peaks remains unclimbed after the Swiss Alps' twin victory over Mount Everest, 29,002 feet, and its companion peak, Lhotse, 27,890 feet, the world's fourth-highest mountain.

The unclimbed peak, Dhaulagiri, 26,795 feet, is now the objective of an Argentine climbing team.

The 10 top peaks with the countries which first conquered them, are: Everest (Britain), K2 (Italy), Kanchenjunga (Britain), Lhotse (Switzerland), Makalu (France), Cho Oya (Austria), Dhaulagiri (unclimbed), Nanga-Parbat (Austria-Germany), Manaslu (Japan), and Annapurna (France). Manaslu, 26,658 feet, was conquered a few weeks ago by a Japanese team.

Driving Made Difficult

GUNTERSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—An automobile and a cabin cruiser collided near here Monday when the boat's controls jammed and it jumped out of Gunterville Lake on to a highway. A car occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Lee Isdell suffered a possible skull fracture and cuts on the face and head.

NEW YORK—Charles Cotton, 194, Toledo, Ohio, defeated Joe Giarde, 160, Philadelphia (10).
SAN DIEGO—Ramon Fuentes, 137, Los Angeles, defeated Benny Gill, Pasadena, Calif. 158 (10).

Supple Lifts Bantam Title

QUEBEC (CP)—Pat Supple, a stocky bundle of two-fisted power, has become one of the youngest fighters to hold the Canadian bantamweight boxing crown.

The 20-year-old Montrealer, who established himself in amateur ranks and made a Canadian Olympic team, hit the big time professionally Monday night when he knocked out veteran Gil Geekie of London, Ont., in the ninth round to win the vacated bantamweight title.

CITY HALL SALE DRAWS 1 ENQUIRY, SAYS MAYOR

Mayor Percy Scurrah said Monday one enquiry has been made since advertisements were placed in cross-Canada papers for sale of city hall.

"I have a bite, I can't say any more..." the mayor stated.

Council decided last month to place on sale the sites of city hall, fire hall, police department and market building. Advertisements have been placed in newspapers here, in Winnipeg, Montreal, Edmonton, Toronto, Calgary, Vancouver and in two financial journals.

Council hoped to raise enough money to pay for a good start toward a new combined city hall, police and fire headquarters, on a new location.

Meanwhile, a separate drive is under way to sell an option on downtown property formerly held by Woodward Stores Ltd. for store purposes. The store gave the city a 30-day extension last Thursday on its option to buy land bounded by Cormorant, Blanshard and Pandora for about $267,000.

Council voted unanimously to accept the time extension, but Mayor Scurrah isn't optimistic.

"There isn't a chance in a million," of locating a buyer for the option before the expiry date, he felt.

Cemetery Lot Prices Under PUC Control

Prices of cemetery lots and shall restrict the right to own services in British Columbia Monday came under control of the Public Utilities Commission with cabinet approval of regulations drafted by the commission.

The regulations require that owners of cemeteries and crematoriums must file schedules of property and services with the commission before offering them for sale.

Where it is intended to increase rates, permission must first be obtained from the commission.

The filing of schedule of rates will not be completed until they have been formally accepted by the commission.

The regulations also provide that no owner of a cemetery ers of lots and plots to purchase monuments or grave markers except in accordance with special regulations under the Cemeteries Act.

Owners of cemeteries and crematoriums will be required to keep them "in a proper state of repair and in a neat and tidy condition."

Where an owner can show that he is without funds for this purpose, the commission may grant relief from these regulations as it deems necessary.

HELPED IN BUILDING

Natural cement was first produced in Canada between 1830 and 1840 at Hull, Que., from Ottawa river limestone.

'I Was in Love... Totally, Helplessly'

One day, as Corinne and I were sitting on the porch, I saw Henry Mustin rounding the corner, deep in conversation with a young officer and followed closely by two more. As they drew closer my eyes came to rest on the officer directly behind Captain Mustin.

He was laughing, yet there was a suggestion of inner force and vitality that struck me. His close-cropped guard's moustache gave an arresting boldness to his features.

A moment later they were on the porch and Henry Mustin was saying: "I want you to meet Lieutenant Spencer."

The talk at lunch was mostly about flying, and I was fascinated. Lieutenant Spencer's gaiety and sense of fun were continually in play, though a certain undertone of sarcasm hinted at harsher forces working beneath the surface.

The eyes were surprisingly intense and bright and quick to flash in response to a quip.

This, I Thought, Was Real Thing

I felt excited and moved as I had never before. Here was a kind of man new to me, strong, assured, sophisticated—one who knew what he wanted and was confident of his ability to get it.

The following day he came back to dine. By the end of the evening I knew I was in love completely, totally, helplessly.

Earl Winfield Spencer was 26 when we fell in love. He was a senior instructor and a key man in the naval air program, then just beginning to feel the quickening influence of the approach of war.

The more I saw of him the more certain I was that this was the real thing.

Sometimes doubts did assail me, and I tried to put on the brakes. But it was no use. Then one evening Win led me on to the country club porch and asked me to marry him.

In the course of the next fortnight I came to know, if not everything about Win, at least a great deal. Deeply imbedded in his nature, under the surface layer of gaiety, was a strange brooding quality that verged on bitterness and even cynicism: a word or gesture could change his manner in a flash.

The laughter that crinkled the lines around his dark eyes would be gone as if a blind had been drawn across his mind; he would become silent and snore. These strange and sometimes bewildering alternations of mood fascinated me even more than his undoubted good looks.

Lost in the perfume of the gladioli and azaleas, I was too inexperienced to realize that the shut-in, bitter side of Win Spencer's nature was the stronger side; that even then he was struggling to hold it in check.

In the years to come it would gain the ascendancy and destroy him and also the life we tried to make together.

Little though I suspected it then, his was to prove to be an even more ill-starred family than the Montagues.

Court of Appeal To Test Validity Of New Milk Act

B.C. Court of Appeal has been asked to determine the validity of the new Milk Act passed at the last session of the legislature.

Government sources say the sections needing clarification are those dealing with equalization—a method by which all producers of the same quality milk can sell on the fluid market.

A form of equalization was attempted many years ago under a previous milk marketing act. After passage through Canadian courts, it was declared ultra vires of the B.C. legislature by the Privy Council in London.

SHARING

The new Milk Act, as it stands, involves the sharing of the milk market on a more even basis between producers. In doing so it takes away a portion of one producer's established market to give more to another.

Earlier this month Liberal Leader Arthur Laing forecast that the act would have to be tested before a court. He said the government should have taken "clarifying action" before the act was proclaimed May 17.

A government spokesman said the court of appeal will be asked to rule whether the Milk Industry Act or any of its provisions is outside the jurisdiction of the B.C. Legislature.

Gunman Molests City Couple After Arms Taken From Shop

HOW HOT IS HOT ENOUGH?

Victoria residents will be permitted to ask the age-old question "is it hot enough for you?" today and Wednesday, according to the official forecast.

On Gonzales Hill, the temperature is expected to reach 75 or better. On downtown pavements, radiation will raise the mercury above 80.

Sunny, warm weather seems certain to continue for the next few days. May so far has chalked up 307.4 hours of sunshine, and a daily average of 10 hours for the balance of the month will set a new record.

Senate to Give Pipe Loan Bill Fast Passage

Government Leader Sees 'No Delay'

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's pipeline bill which has ignited the Commons into fiery debate may find more tranquil passage in the Senate.

Senator W. Ross Macdonald, government leader in the Senate, said in an interview Monday he anticipates there will be some debate on the $30,000,000 measure, "but no delay."

Senator John T. Haig, Senate opposition leader, said he personally will oppose the bill and that he expects two or three of his colleagues to support him.

But there will not be enough opposition, he said, to prevent the bill from going through—in two or three days.

Closure action to end debate by Saturday on all stages of the pipelines loan bill was expected in the Commons this afternoon.

But calm and decorum reigned in the Commons during the first hour of today's gas pipeline debate.

The repeated tumult of recent days was missing.

Progressive Conservative and CCF members, opposing the proposal, had the first round of debate on the bill's fourth clause.

They made only passing criticism of government action in blocking debate on the first three clauses.

Prime Minister St. Laurent Monday offered the opposition five days of debate on all remaining stages of passing the legislation through the House.

But his "olive branch" was rejected in another flare-up vigorously condemning the government's curbing of debate.

Last night Trade Minister Howe also tried to pour oil on roiled waters. He spoke quietly and in conciliatory vein.

OVER-ENTHUSIASTIC

Mr. Howe in his most appealing manner said: "Now, why are we pressing on? Why are we pressing this? Well, I do not know. Perhaps I get over-enthusiastic about a project. I have been working on sizeable projects all my life and somehow I reach a point in the development when I think that a project is important. If it is a serious enough project I begin to think it is the most important thing in the world—and it does seem to me that it is important that we do not lose a year in undertaking this pipeline."

The galleries were packed throughout the afternoon and evening.

IS THIS WHERE HE GOT GUN?

Hold-up "victim" Bob Gillett stands with target pistol of type held on him by odd stick-up man Monday night. Gillett and girl friend, Margaret Ross, visit broken sporting goods store window from which smash-and-grab artist stole revolvers. Gunman seemed familiar with weapon, Gillett said.

B and K Canada Visit Reported in Offing

LONDON (CP)—The Daily Mail says in a New York dispatch that Russia's Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin are planning to make an official visit to Canada.

The dispatch says the Russian leaders are "known to be anxious" to visit the United States, and implies that an official visit to Canada, which would be covered by American newspapers, radio and television, would be a suitable opening gambit. The U.S. is thought to be reluctant to extend an invitation at this time.

OTTAWA (CP)—The external affairs department said today the government is not considering inviting Russia's Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin to visit Canada at this time.

An official also said the government has received no suggestion that the Russians are planning a trip to Canada.

Conrad Golf Leader

TROON, Scotland (AP)—Defending champion Joe Conrad of San Antonio, Tex., led the way into the fourth round of the British amateur golf championship today with a 3 and 2 victory over Tom Anderson of Scotland.

TWO LIGHTERS NEEDED TO AMMUNITION SHIPS

OTTAWA (CP)—Bad weather on six occasions during the last six months has forced suspension of ammunition loading or unloading at the Rocky Point naval magazine at Esquimalt, the defence department says in a Commons return.

In reply to questions by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC (PC, Esquimalt-Saanich), the department said two lighters are used to load or unload ammunition from the four types of naval vessels which use the magazine. The ships do not load directly from the Rocky Point jetty, built at a cost of $234,421. The jetty is 216 feet long and 50 feet wide.

The return adds that the lighters cannot remain at Rocky Point in all weather. It is eight miles by sea between Rocky Point and Esquimalt.

Former Beria Stooges Executed for Treason

MOSCOW (AP)—The former prime minister of Azerbaijan and three other top officials of that Caucasian Republic have been executed for treason and counter-revolutionary activity.

They were accused of being accomplices of former Soviet police boss Lavrenti Beria.

The newspaper Baku Worker, which reached Moscow today, said they had been charged with "terroristic acts."

The chief defendant in the trial, which the newspaper said was held publicly in Baku between April 12 and April 26, was identified as M. D. Bagalov, former secretary of the Communist party in that area and the chairman of the council of ministers August, 1953, a month after Beria was purged. He had been secretary of the Communist Party since 1947.

The other three men who were executed were M. D. Bakhchev, H. I. Grigoryan and R. A. Markaryan.

The two who were imprisoned were S. S. Ibragimovich, a former vice commissar of state security, and S. Emelyanov, a former people's commissar for state security in Azerbaijan.

The indictment said he and his accomplices were guilty of treason, of using improper methods of police investigation,

'Screwball' Stickup Scares Saanich Pair

A city soft drink salesman and his girl friend were held at gun-point early this morning by a strangely acting, unshaven man who may have been responsible for an earlier theft of four weapons from a Broad Street sporting goods store.

Victims of the weird incident were Bob Gillett, 22, 143 Medina, and Margaret Ross, 18, 3811 Cedar Hill Road.

They were sitting in a car outside Miss Ross' home when the gun-wielding took place.

The gunman asked for nothing, took nothing and finally drove away in a small car thought to have been of English make.

Earlier, about 12.25 a.m., someone smashed a plate glass window at Robinson's Sporting Goods, 1307 Broad, and stole a French automatic pistol and two .22 calibre revolvers, and possibly a rifle.

The break-in occurred at 12.25 a.m.

Two Men Seen Driving Off

Mrs. Margaret Gibbins, dispatcher at Island Taxi, 1312 Broad, who was in her office at the time of the break-in, said she saw a small English-make car drive away with two men in it.

"I tried to get their licence number but I couldn't," she said.

A pistol of the type stolen was identified as being similar to the one used by the gunman.

Around 7 a.m. police discovered a plate glass shop window smashed at Roger Montelitt's Fishing Goods, 618 Fort. Mr. Montelitt said nothing was stolen.

Both city and Saanich police were investigating what was termed a "screwball" stickup and the possible connection with the smash-and-grab theft downtown.

City police chief John Blackstock said: "I've told dealers they should lock up their revolvers at night. The window is no place for them."

Possibility that the wanted man is a psychopath spurred the hunt.

Gillett said the gunman "didn't look quite right in his eyes."

"He told me to freeze, and I froze naturally."

He and Miss Ross had just driven up to the latter's home and were sitting in the car when they noticed a small car approaching from the rear drive past and stop less than 100 yards ahead of Gillett's car.

He said he noticed it particularly because he saw the red stop lights go on, then go out as the car pulled ahead a few feet more so that it appeared parked outside the next address.

He turned his lights out, and it was quite a spell before he got out. He seemed undecided where he was parking. That's the first thing I noticed," Gillett recalled.

The driver had a flashlight which he shone on the ground as he stepped out of the car. "This man walked toward us and I got out of the car to see what he wanted. He pulled a pistol out of his belt and pointed it toward us."

"I told me to freeze. I thought he was going to strip the car because he walked toward it. He had the flashlight in my eyes all the time."

"Margaret said he never took his eyes off me. I don't know whether he saw her or not."

Both had a good look at the heavy-set man. A street light illuminated his features and the gun he held. The couple said they could identify the man and the gun if they saw them again.

"He asked me my name and I told him. I was afraid he would ask me for money. I only had two cents. That's why I was afraid."

"He went over to the door of the car and stood a minute, still looking at me and pointing the gun. Margaret was in the driver's seat and she was closer to him than I was."

"I was never so scared," she confessed.

"Then he said, 'Get back in the car and carry on.' I got in and after a short time he went back to his car and drove off," Gillett went on.

"He turned right on Ruby and went down towards Shelbourne. I made sure he was gone and phoned Saanich police."

Gillett said the hold-up man seemed to be eccentric. He didn't look right in his eyes—like he didn't know whether to pull the trigger or not."

He described the man as "close to six feet" in height, about 24 years of age and weighing about 200 pounds. The man's face was full and chunky, and he needed a shave. His hair was short and dark and he wore a light shirt with dark trousers.

The gun he carried looked like a .22 calibre revolver.

Convict Flees From Oakalla

VANCOUVER (CP)—A lone, tattooed prisoner escaped from Oakalla prison farm in suburban Burnaby today and was last seen fleeing on foot in the vicinity of the jail.

Oakalla officials identified the escapee as George Perovich, 25, of Vancouver, and described him as five-foot-seven, 164 pounds and with black hair and brown eyes.

RCMP said it was the second escape for Perovich. In 1949 he fled from the provincial mental hospital at Essondale, B.C., after being transferred there from Oakalla.

PAY HIKE FOR MINERS

TORONTO (CP)—Wage increases averaging 22.8 cents an hour are included in a new contract announced today between Steep Rock iron ore mines and 800 members of the United Steelworkers CLC at Attikokan, Ont.

GOLD-PLATED TV HOAX

LONDON (Reuters)—Lady Norah Docker, the average Briton's idea of gold-plated wealth, pulled an audacious hoax on Monday night on Mayfair society and millions of television viewers.

The blonde, vivacious wife of millionaire Sir Bernard Docker appeared as dazzling as ever on a TV panel game. She wore glittering earrings, necklace and bracelets setting off a blue lace gown.

The secret: Her earrings and bracelets were glass, her necklace chormore and her lace dress off the peg of a low-price dress shop. The total ensemble cost exactly £11 4s 6d.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

O GOD, as this day draws to a close, we end our labors conscious that we have lived a life in miniature, from the clear dawn through the heat of the noonday into the cool of the evening. We thank Thee for every minute of it and for all the opportunities it has given us for service. And we lay ourselves down to rest content; in Jesus Christ Our Lord. Amen.

See where th' Mayor sez he has a bite on th' city hall. Hope he don't put it on th' taxpayers.

This fine weather's bringin' out a great flowesin' o' water bills.

Hope thet feller who swiped th' guns is over 21. Youngsters ain't s'posed t' hev firearms.

brother was killed while fighting in France; the other brother was to die in a riding accident, and Win's mother was to be killed in a car accident.

As for Win himself, he endured a succession of personal tragedies in his later life. He married four times, and died in 1950 at the age of 61.

Our wedding took place on Nov. 8, 1916, in the church at Baltimore in which I had been confirmed.

We drove to Washington with Cousin Lelia Barnett after the ceremony. She deposited us at the hotel in characteristic Montague style.

"It seems all wrong," she said, "to leave you here with this strange man."

From Washington we went to White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia.

Here, in the hotel soon after we arrived, an odd incident occurred about which I had good reason to reflect upon later.

Win and I had gone to our room to change for dinner. While he was dealing with the luggage, I went to the window. An instant later I was turned around by an explosive nautical oath. Win was stooped over the dressing table, peering at something under the glass top. "Imagine something like this happening to a man on his honeymoon," he chuckled.

I went over to see what he had read. It was a printed hotel notice stating that West Virginia was a dry state and therefore no alcoholic beverages could be sold on the premises.

"That's hospitality for you," said Win. "We certainly can't stay here."

Middle-of-Road Keeps Control In Italy Vote

ROME (AP)—Middle-of-the-road democracy remained the most powerful force in Italian local government today despite a late leftist surge which left the fascist monarchist right with the balance of power in many divided town councils.

Even when the centre bloc or their bitter opponents on the far left had made the strongest local showing, due to the system of proportional representation, the smaller rightist groups could swing control either way in such cities as Rome, Genoa, Florence, Trieste, Bari, Venice, Leghorn and Siena.

Since the right feels far more kindly toward the centre than toward the left the bloc of divided monarchists and the Fascist Italian Social Movement was likely to work with the centre in most places. Thus the situation was less serious in fact than in theory.

Spokesman for Italy's middle-way government generally felt the two-day administrative elections had been as successful as the centre had expected.

Communist strength, while generally firm, turned spotty in some areas.

Both East and West are watching the returns closely, since this is the first major election in Western Europe since the Kremlin adopted its new policies of anti-Stalinism and co-existence.

The elections are all either for provincial or local councils. By totalling the vote and comparing it to past years, a picture of how Italy is moving politically is gained.

But in political practice there will be hundreds of local political deals between parties which oppose each other nationally. Due to the proportional representation system used in the larger cities, this is necessary to prevent municipal paralysis where the many parties of left, centre and right split the vote.

How to KEEP FIT after 50

In the old days fifty seemed the signal to slow down—take things easy—watch your diet—get more rest. It's still good advice. But these days you can face fifty with many interesting and active years ahead, —active, that is, if you can avoid backache and the "fired-out" feeling, due to kidney and bladder disorders, that often develop around that age. For more than 60 years Dodd's Kidney Pills have been helping men and women of all ages to keep kidneys and bladder in good order, —helping them to feel better, to work better, and get more fun out of life. If you are approaching fifty, or past it, Dodd's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dodd's. 54

SOCREDS TO FIELD 34 IN N.B.

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Bert R. Lebow, Social Credit member of Parliament for the British Columbia riding of Cariboo, said today his party expects to have 34 candidates in the field for the June 18 New Brunswick election.

Social Credit governments are in power in Alberta and British Columbia. The party holds 14 seats in the House of Commons.

New Brunswick will be the first Atlantic province in which Social Credit has entered enough election candidates to form government.

Fourteen have been nominated to date.

Full slates of 52 candidates have been nominated by Progressive Conservative and Liberal parties. The CCF is not expected to contest any ridings.

Conservatives won 36 of 52 seats in 1952. Liberals won 16. Nominations close June 4.

Russia Will Win Control in Asia Says CBC's Halton

VANCOUVER (CP)—Russia will win the struggle between east and west for the control of Asia, Matthew Halton, chief European correspondent for CBC, told the Canadian Club here Monday.

"The United States and Canada are spending more money than Russia in Asia, he said, but the Communist way of life appeals more to the Asian mind."

"Russia threatens to win the neutral part of the world by the economic and social approach," said Mr. Halton. "The Russians are confident there is no need for force."

"Russian leaders are thinking big while British and American leaders these days are not thinking at all," he added.

Manitoba Bans Licence Plate On Front of Car

WINNIPEG (CP)—Manitoba motorists no longer need to have front licence plates. In fact, those who keep them on will be liable for prosecution.

An order-in-council passed May 17 says that all vehicles except motorcycles, high-speed tractors and semi-trailer trucks, shall carry only one licence plate—the rear one. The order, effective May 22, was not publicized until the registrar of motor vehicles, R. B. Baillie, returned Monday from a United States automobile convention.

Mr. Baillie also said the province likely will adopt a permanent licence plate next year, replacing the validation strip system.

Vancouver Alderman To Continue Fight For Sunday Sport

VANCOUVER (CP)—Alderman Earle Adams said Monday he will suggest further action to permit Sunday sports in Vancouver if the provincial government does not answer a city council request for a court ruling on the validity of its Sunday sports by-law.

The province has told the city that the request will be brought to the attention of the cabinet. Ald. Adams did not indicate what action he would suggest.

Friends in Ottawa

"JIMMY" Stanislas Charron is a stocky, grey-haired French-Canadian in his sixties who works for the Federal Government Public Works Department, smiles happily on mankind and, in his own way, does a good job for Canadian unity.

The other day he unlocked the door leading to the flat section of Ottawa's Confederation Building roof, just below its steep peak, so we could enjoy the view.

Below us the Ottawa River slipped by, breaking into white water where it hit the shore of a barren little island, "Lone Pine island," Jimmy said, "after a little tree that once grew there."

"There used to be a lot of trees," he explained. "I was born over there," he continued, pointing off toward the Gatineau Hills. "When I was young they used to give a boy an axe and turn him loose in the woods. We had as good a time with an axe as the kids today have with a hockey stick. We weren't afraid of work."

When he was 17, Jimmy travelled far westward to the prairies. "I wanted to find out about farming," he took one job after another, explaining that he hadn't fought with his bosses, felt a little apologetic about leaving, but wanted to see more and learn more. Work, to Jimmy, seems to be a responsibility he accepts and discharges with a certain pride.

Now he's in Ottawa, comfortably near his birthplace, with a contented outlook and a friendliness to all types of people.

FEEL AT HOME

Jimmy Stanislas Charron is a man of simple virtues, friendly and agreeable to strangers—a person who makes you feel very much at home in his part of Canada—and helps you to find common ground among the diverse elements which make up this nation. His natural tongue is French, yet his English is good, with that slight change in emphasis on syllables attractive in people who know more than one language.

You might find many counterparts to Mr. Charron in Ottawa. But, if you came from Victoria, you wouldn't have to look far for fellow townsmen.

In the Confederation Building you could call on Ron Burns, who went from the B.C.

Government finance department to a bigger job in the federal capital.

On the floor above him you could find the office of Ken Eaton, who was a young First World War veteran recently graduated from Dalhousie when he came to Oak Bay High School to teach maths, coach rugby, play full-back for the Wanderers and row for the J.B.A.A. It's Dr. Ken Eaton now, the senior authority on taxation, who still goes hupping and fishing with his friend and ex-boss, former Finance Minister and now Mr. Justice Douglas Abbott. But memories stay with him of the good days at Oak Bay.

You can ride up to the fourth floor of the Central Block and visit Dr. Frank Fairley, and possibly Mrs. Fairley, who has accompanied him to Ottawa, if you arrive there after the House has risen.

Or you can slip into the Lord Elgin Hotel and run into Harry and Senator Nancy Hodges, cheerful guides through the Parliament Buildings.

WHISPER "VICTORIA"

Whisper "Victoria" to them and you have a magic "Open Sesame."

When you stroll through Parliamentary corridors, you can bump into Harold Winch, a young man on crutches and thoroughly unhappy with them. You may see former B.C. M.L.A. Grace MacInnis, daughter of the C.C.F. founder and attentive wife of Vancouver's Angus MacInnis.

You can look from the gallery at Gen. Peakes, who makes no secret of his longing to be back in Victoria.

And you find, as you wander around, that newspaper pictures have made you familiar with vast numbers of people you know only by report. It's a bit confusing, seeing a well-known face and trying to remember whether it's an acquaintance or a person of national distinction.

You run into George Drew, are probably introduced to him, receive a warm smile and hear his inquiries about the Coast. Nobody mentions the Great Schism on such occasions.

And in the Press Gallery you find the personalities so widely known for their by-lines—particularly if your guide happens to be Vic Mackie, whose Ottawa material appears in this newspaper.

It's an appealing city, Ottawa, with enough Victorians in it to remind you of the particular charm of B.C.'s capital—a fine city to visit, Ottawa, with weather that makes you appreciate life on the West Coast.

CAN CITY REGULATE JUNKYARDS?

Magistrate Is Doubtful

The legality of the city's "junkyard by-law" was questioned by Magistrate H. C. Hall at the trial Monday of Leslie D. Foxgord, charged with maintaining a junkyard without a licence.

Magistrate Hall said he could find nothing in the Municipal Act which gave the city the authority to control junkyards within its boundaries.

"The Act says junk shop," said the magistrate. "I see no mention of junkyard."

City prosecutor said in the past the city's by-law has never been questioned.

"That may be so, but it is an issue here," replied the magistrate.

The magistrate remanded judgment until June 1.

Foxgord, who resides at 1144 Queens Avenue, was accused of maintaining a junkyard on the boulevard on the north side of Princess Avenue, between Government and Douglas Streets.

HOME GARDEN

By JACK BEASTALL

Cauliflowers Need Rich But Firm Soil

Every gardener cannot boast of success with cauliflower, not because the plants are difficult, but owing to soil conditions not being to their liking.

Good curds, as the white heads are termed, come from soil rich in manure or compost; the very nature of which makes the soil loose.

Opposed to this is the common liking of all members of the cabbage family for a firmly packed soil. Unless the roots are in a tight soil only mediocre curds will result.

If the gardener can supply the needed manure or compost, and then roll or tread the soil until it is difficult to force in a trowel, he has good chances of success.

Also in common with the cabbage family is the liking for a limed soil, and a sprinkling a week or so before the plants are set out is most beneficial.

Nitrate of potash is the best stimulant to use during the

Five to Attend UBCM Convention

Mayor Percy Scurrell Monday named city delegates to a Union of B.C. Municipalities convention at Penticton Oct. 3, 4 and 5. They are the mayor, Ald. Robert Macmillan, Ald. W. F. Pinfold, Ald. Arthur Dowell and Ald. Geoffrey Edgell.

Permit was issued at City Hall Monday for addition of four suites to produce an eight-suite apartment block at 212 Government.

Cost will be $20,000 and work will be carried out by the owner, E. N. Lierisch.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

Aftermath of World War

LONDON—A Canadian, Louise Cushing, has been writing in the London press about a few things she feels are wrong with England. These include the cold toast she has encountered in hotels during her visit. In Canada you get it warm and soggy. The English prefer it cold and crisp. It's not a case of one being right and the other wrong; it's just a matter of taste.

But Miss Cushing's main blast is reserved for the fact that she doesn't think England has cleaned up very well after the recent war. "Why doesn't someone do something," she asks, "about the dozens of abandoned, deserted and dilapidated airfields and hangars, army camps and gun emplacements, which blot the countryside? Is it that the English are so accustomed to living with ruins and ghosts of earlier centuries that those of the twentieth are not noticeable?"

There is no question that a person coming from Canada does notice things like concrete pillboxes still around the place in these parts. Canada did not have the threat of invasion hanging over her head, so fortunately it was never necessary to turn the whole country into an armed fortress, as was the case in England. To Canadians it seems strange to still see these evidences of war after so many years, but there are various aspects of this.

In the first place, Britain is not unwise enough to scrub but all those defence establishments, even those specially constructed during the war and now not in use. Who knows that they won't be needed again and perhaps soon... particularly with incidents happening such as frogmen disappearing in the vicinity of visiting Russian navy ships.

No doubt that is why one still sees evidence of previous wars around Toronto and elsewhere in Canada. It might be argued that Toronto's fort should have been pulled down as soon as its immediate function had ceased.

But another point—and this also applies to the clearing of bomb-damaged areas still to be seen here—is that demolishing and clearing away defence structures that can safely be written off takes labor. Britain's policy following the mess left behind and the housing shortage that resulted from the war has been to use her building labor mainly for construction rather than demolition. Far better to have the workers putting up much needed new buildings instead of pulling down damaged or otherwise useless buildings.

Building permits after the war applied not only to construction but you had to obtain one also if you wanted to do away with some eyesore. That is a reason why so much of the aftermath of World War II is still in evidence here.

Engineers have found that today's high-horsepower, high-compression engines are especially sensitive to certain deposits.

Within only a few thousand miles, deposits form which cause spark plugs to "miss." When this happens, power falls off. Performance generally gets sluggish. Obviously, what's needed is a way to stop spark plug "miss."

Shell Premium Gasoline with TCP*, the greatest gasoline development in 31 years, neutralizes engine deposits. TCP additive restores power to your car that pre-firing and spark plug "miss" take away.

Stevens Fears Anti-British Bias In Howe's Gas Pipeline Policies

(From The Canadian Press)

PENTICTON — Hon. H. H. Stevens, a trade and commerce minister in the Meighen cabinet of 1921, and the Bennett government of 1930, Monday night described Defence Production Minister C. D. Howe's pattern of leadership as following that of William Lyon Mackenzie King who "kicked Great Britain in the face."

"The pipeline issue, causing so much furore in Parliament today, has been discussed for four years," he said.

"Why, during these last four years wasn't the government going about seeing if pipe could be secured from Great Britain or Belgium, our wheat customers?" Mr. Stevens asked.

"I'm afraid Mr. Howe is seeking to do in a modern business way what Mackenzie King did in 1946 to sever as much as possible all contact with the British government."

"Today's alarm throughout the country about threatened control of Canada's economic life by U.S. investors can be attributed directly to the policies and doctrines laid down by Mackenzie King," Mr. Stevens said.

BABY DIES IN FIRE

SQUAMISH — Theresa Renouf, six-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Renouf, died here early today when fire destroyed the family home.

RCMP said the parents and another daughter, Melody, 8, escaped. The blaze is believed to have started near an oil stove.

First reports said the flames were spotted by a PGE engine driver, who blew a fire signal on his train whistle. The signal was heard by a telephone operator who turned in the alarm.

KILLED AT KITIMAT

KITIMAT — Robert James Hall, 35, of North Vancouver, father of six, was killed in a traffic accident here Saturday.

LEGION PIONEER DIES

VANCOUVER — Funeral services were to be held here today for William Huggins, 94, veteran of three wars, the oldest Vancouver member of the Canadian Legion.

DIES AT KAMLOOPS

KAMLOOPS — James Milne Benzie, former homestead appraiser and grazing supervisor for the federal government, died here Sunday. He was 91.

FIRE DODGERS FINED

PRINCE GEORGE — Four men were fined $25 and costs Monday when found guilty of failing to report for fire fighting duties.

SOMMERS' BROTHER DIES

CASTELGAR — Harry Sommers, 58, former member of the Castlegar village commission and a brother of Rossland-Trail MLA Robert Sommers, died at work here Monday. He was employed by Waldie lumber mills as a planer foreman.

He is survived by his widow, two daughters, Mrs. C. W. Wanless of Penticton and Mrs. W. Dalton of Port Angeles, Wash.

COMINCO EX-OFFICIAL DIES

TRAIL — Funeral services were held here Monday for A. J. (Scotty) McDonnell, former superintendent of transportation for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co., who died last Thursday.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

Directors are: W. T. Bulman, E. H. Deeder, D. C. Dorrell, W. P. Whiteley, Gerald Guichon, J. W. Lauder, H. D. C. Allison, F. A. Devick, E. A. Buck, T. P. Wilson, Hugh Cornwall, W. R. Hargreaves, Mel Mayfield, Huston Dunaway, A. Parke, S. R. Reynolds, H. T. Tweedie, L. Graham and E. Haughton.

ARSON SUSPECT HELD

for investigation in connection with seven fires set by an arsonist in downtown Vancouver Friday night. He is being held without charge.

NEW JAIL FOR WOMEN

VANCOUVER — Attorney General Robert Bonner announced here Monday that a new women's jail will be built in the Fraser valley to replace the present women's block at Oakalla prison farm.

Mr. Bonner did not name the area in the valley where the jail will be built. It will be on the "cottage type" instead of the traditional type of building containing a series of cell blocks.

Two mountains more than 13,000 feet high have been surveyed by Australia's Antarctic expedition.

Fire Hoses Break Up Protesting Douks

NELSON, B.C. (CP) — A crowd of shouting and wailing Sons of Freedom, offshoot radicals of the Russian Doukhobor sect, were dispersed by a fire hose here Monday.

The Sons, about 30 women and drop and reducing the danger of a half-dozen men, were wetted forest and heath fires which have down when they gathered at the been burning in many districts.

taken to the school two years ago when the Freedomites failed to comply with provincial laws requiring that the children be enrolled in school.

The sect claims Canadian schools teach militarism, contrary to their religious beliefs.

The fire department was called when the men and women refused to break up the noisy meeting on the lawn of Mr. Gulley's home. When the first stream of water hit them two women fell to the ground, wailing and screaming as the water was played over them. The hose burst a few moments later and the Freedomites took this opportunity to start moving down the street.

DRIVEN BY HOSES

They stopped only about a half-block away, however, and the repaired hose was brought into play again. The pumper truck carrying the hose followed them down the main street of town, spraying them every time they stopped or slowed down.

Gay Taps to Classic Ballet Provide Fine Entertainment

The sparkling finish that goes with the perfect timing gained only through a competent teacher was seen Monday night at the Royal Theatre where the Velda Wille School of Dancing presented its "Maytime Revue."

More than 200 young dancers tripped lightly through the evening with ease and assurance. Every type of dancing was presented from gay taps and modern steps to the classic ballet.

The revue was sponsored by Esquimalt Chapter, IODE, and presented by Velda Wille, assisted by Bebe de Roland.

Mickey Francis was a clever narrator, assisted by young Lorraine Johnson. Orchestra was under the direction of Reg Wood; the pianist was Mrs. Mary Graves and scenery was in charge of Dolly Jones and Jim Ferguson.

Main theme of the revue was woven around the age-old story of "Cinderella." Dainty Sylvia Mohey in the part of the little slavey who became a princess, danced and mimed her way into the hearts of every member of the audience.

PERFECTION

The stepsisters, Myrna Smith and Doreen Coles, brought to their parts, not only perfection in dancing but a knowledge of comedy that was a delight.

Rosemary Tierney as the Fairy Godmother; Barbara Hodgson as Prince Charming, and Jane Bowering as the Kitten added much to the beloved fairy tale. A pas seul was danced by Mavis Veness with a grace and finish that brought enthusiastic plaudits from the audience as did the "Bluebird" danced by Donna Hawkins.

DANCED, MIMED

Marie Tippet and Janet Haveny as the coachmen in the "Cinderella" story danced and mimed in perfect unison; the horses, complete with red and green tails, were outstanding. They were impersonated by Kathryn Haverly, Lynne Fan-

thorpe, Lynne Hallam, Gail Hodgkins, Patricia Walton, Anita Davis, Joanne Main, Cheryl Arnold, Margaret Dunn, Maurice Hallam and Sharon Kade.

Exquisite little-fairies that tripped their way through the story were Susan Robinson, Marie Malpass, Donna Allison, Marilyn Allison, Nancy Brooks, Beverley Cochrane, Delia Eldridge and Irene Smith.

Hing Mar was much applauded as a Russian Princess; Marilyn Sommers and Carl Rudolph had heads nodding in unison to Kibya, Yemen and the Sudan.

hiding cuts your paint costs

TRUTONE WHITE is the result of years of C-I-L research... a high-hiding one-coat white that saves you dollars both in paint and labor costs.

TRUTONE WHITE is not only intensely white to start with — it stays white years after ordinary paints have turned dirty and gray. Rain helps it shed dust and grime, helps prevent stains from eavestroughs, downspouts, flashings and window screens.

May is National Beautification Month

Save time, save paint, save dollars.

U.K. FIGHT OFFICIALS NIX FOREIGN REFEREE

LONDON (AP) — American manager Charley Johnston Monday lost his battle with British boxing officials to get a neutral, foreign, referee to handle the Archie Moore-Yolande Pompey light-heavyweight championship bout here June 5.

The British Boxing Board of Control announced it had appointed Jack Hart of London, one of Britain's best referees, to officiate his first world championship bout.

Johnston manages Moore, the champion from San Diego, Calif.

'KILL THE (URP) UMP,' NEW PCL CRY

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Pacific Coast League baseball fans here are going to get dinner at games, if they want them.

Dinner will be served in a former bleacher area along third base line.

Douglas Giddings, secretary of the San Diego club, said the plan had been given a trial and at one game drew 300 fans, who watched the game while they ate.

Wiebe's Belt Settles Rouser

Gorge Hotel 9, Arrows 7
Arrow Furniture and Gorge Hotel took two hours and 20 minutes to complete their Senior A Softball League game at Central Park Monday night but they didn't waste a single minute of it.

In that time they crammed a wide-open ball game that was decided (9-7 for Gorge) on a towering home run in the last inning and an infield fight that saw both dugouts emptied and the ejection of four players.

The brawl that led to the toss-outs came about in the fourth inning.

George Hall of Gorge slid into second base on Les Wilson's ground ball and blocked Arrow second-sacker Bill Benn, preventing him from throwing to first in an effort to complete the double-play. Benn and Hall untangled themselves and came up swinging, and both dugouts immediately emptied as players swarmed all over the infield.

Benn and Hall were given the heave-ho by umpires Gordy Perkins and Henry Harris as were John Furmston and George Wright of Arrows, who tried to be peace-makers.

PLATE THEFT

Benn had earlier set the tenor for the off-beat doings when he made a rare steal of home in the third inning.

Gorge picked up a run in the eighth inning on Gordy Jones' home run but still trailed, 6-4 when they went into the fantastic ninth inning.

With one out, Verne Evans singled and went to second when Marc Cunningham wheeled a walk. Ben Price singled to fill the bases and Evans lit out for home on Ken Gunter's infield bouncer. Evans beat the throw to the plate, upset catcher

Norm Dickie with a hard slide and Cunningham, hot-footed in with the tying run, leaving two runners still on the bases.

Wiebe, who earlier had been knocked out of the box and had moved to the outfield, came up and promptly belted a towering drive over the right-center rope for a three-run homer, that broke up the ball game.

Cunningham, who relieved Wiebe in the third, was the winning pitcher. Leading slicker for Arrows was Tim Walker, with a double and two singles.

Tonight, it will be Gorge and Chinese Students at 6:30. On Friday night, Arrows will meet the Polyettes girls team in a benefit game for the Polyette girls who were robbed while playing in Vancouver.

Butlers Top Strathconas

Led by Jack May's four-goal effort, Butlers bounced Strathcona Cafe, 9-6, at Stevenson Park Monday night in the opening game of the juvenile "B" lacrosse league season.

Brian O'Hare helped May with three goals, while Bill Wilson was the best of the losers, scoring twice.

In a Greater Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association diaper division game Monday, Saanich Farmers downed Blue Bombers, 7-5. Don McNeil scored three goals for the winners.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

Dear contributors to the support of the Old Jokes home and, in fact, Dear All Readers:
I need your help and advice.
I think I have made up a NEW joke.
I would like you to peruse same, and then let me know (a) if it is a NEW joke, or (b) if it is a joke.
Joke starts (writ by hand by me.)

The psychiatrist's nurse showed the patient into the office, and saw that he was comfortable on the consulting couch. Then she went into the next room and reported to the psychiatrist "Your next patient, doctor, thinks he is a parrot."

"A simple case of reverse anthropomorphism," said the doctor. "I'll have him straightened out in no time."

So the doctor went into the consulting room lowered the shades, turned the lights down low, and talked to the patient in a soothing voice.

"What seems to be the trouble?" asked the psychiatrist.

"Polly wants a cracker," said the patient.

"Crackers, indeed, have their merits," said the doctor, trying to gain the confidence of the patient, "but then, so do bacon and eggs, potatoes and gravy, pork and beans. By the way," asked the doctor, slyly, "which do you prefer?"

"Polly wants a cracker," said the patient.

So the doctor dropped the subject of food and tried Topic A. "What do you like best about girls?" asked the doctor. "Their faces? Hands? Hair? Minds? Laughter? Talk?"

"Polly wants a cracker," said the patient.

In desperation, the doctor tried again. "If you were offered a choice between a date with Marilyn Munro and a cracker, which would you take?" he asked.

Without hesitation, the patient replied: "Polly wants a cracker."

The doctor jumped to his feet in disgust. "I give up," he said to the nurse. "Never in all the 40 years I have been a practicing psychiatrist have I seen such a stubborn fixation."

"This patient," added the doctor, "is completely convinced he is a parrot."

The nurse looked at the patient thoughtfully.

"Could it be because he is a parrot?" she asked.

End of joke.

All the liquor boards in Canada will be represented here June 4 to 7 in the Empress Hotel at the 17th annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Provincial Liquor Commissioners.

Approximately 100 delegates will attend. President of the association is George Stewart, chairman of the Saskatchewan Liquor Board.

Agenda details have yet to be worked out.

First meeting this year to enable Esquimalt taxpayers to ask questions and be briefed on council's 1956 plans will be held in Esquimalt High School June 6 at 8 p.m.

All residents are invited and may question Councilors J. E. Carey, outside organizations; James Bryant, public works; G. K. Sammon, health and parks; Walter Holger, finance; and Arthur Fields, fire and lights.

Twenty-year-old Paul Schultz, 727 Front, was sentenced in city police court today to a fine of $35 or to an alternative 10 days in jail, for concealing an offensive weapon.

Schultz pleaded guilty to the charge. Police said he carried a straight razor and threatened two men in front of the Empress Hotel.

A charge of attempted suicide was dismissed against Doris Buscombe who appeared in city police court today.

City prosecutor Alan Bigelow requested Magistrate H. C. Hall to dismiss the charge on the grounds there was no evidence to substantiate the indictment.

Found guilty on four charges of theft, Belle Jones was remanded by Magistrate H. C. Hall in city police court today until September 5 for sentence.

The young woman was found guilty of stealing $167 during her employment as cashier with Hygrade Radio Ltd.

City street lighting department substituted for the SPCA and the city fire department this morning by rescuing a cat up a tree. The cat had been high in an oak near 2514 Shelbourne for "several days" neighbors said.

Phoned for assistance, SPCA officials reportedly said that left alone, the cat would descend itself. The fire department could not spare a ladder truck in case of fire. Cats Protective League will find the animal a home.

ENTOMOLOGIST William Webb shows damage done by one Gold Coast ambrosia beetle. They manufacture sawdust from hardwood at alarming rate.

BUSY BEETLE

Gold Coast Bug Bounced By City Man

By TONY DICKASON

This is a boring story, but read on, read on.

It's about the ambrosia beetle of the Gold Coast, and William Webb of Victoria, who has been studying them there the past three-and-a-half years.

Mr. Webb, an entomologist, worked for the British Colonial Research Service on Africa's west coast.

In his studies he found the ambrosia bores through 15 per cent of the Gold Coast's number two export, timber. The beetle is a tough little customer and chomps, apparently without headache, through ebony and mahogany.

They don't eat the wood; just kick it out for a place to live and hatch more beetles.

One beetle can toss out a handful of sawdust before you can say "mahogany is extremely hard wood," Mr. Webb reports.

When Mr. Webb walked ashore on the Gold Coast, nobody knew much about the ambrosia beetle. It wasn't even named. Job was to study its habits, and find a spray to knock off ambrosia.

Ordinary bug-bashing sprays don't stand up under heavy rainfall and high evaporation. So Mr. Webb and assistants came up with a spray that would.

The ambrosia beetle was named from a peculiar fungus in the beetle nest, deep in the heart of hardwood, on which larvae feed.

TASTED GOOD.

Some researcher tasted it, and it tasted good.

"Ambrosia," he breathed, "food for the gods."

Thus, the ambrosia beetle. Mr. Webb had headquarters at Kumasi, 200 miles inland, where there were 400 whites and 72,000 natives.

He arrived here Monday after a three-week trip from Africa, and is visiting the month at the home of his parents, 1751 Davie.

Mr. Webb has yet to make a final decision as to whether or not he will start teaching this fall, forest biology, at New York University in Syracuse.

Anti-Vogee Drive Denied by Teacher

A Mount Newton High School teacher today denied ever having attempted to influence students against the school principal, Arthur E. Vogee, who is appealing his demotion by Saanich school board from the principalship.

The teacher was a witness at today's sitting of a board of reference called to hear Mr. Vogee's appeal against the school board's decision.

"Do you know anything about a petition favoring Mr. Vogee that was circulated among students," the witness was asked by Victor Dryer, counsel for Mr. Vogee.

"It has been suggested to me that you told students in your class that they would get detention if they signed the petition," Mr. Dryer said.

"That's not so," the teacher said.

Mr. Dryer asked the witness if the staff, with one exception, had agreed this year that they were satisfied with conditions and intended to stay at the school.

"It doesn't ring a bell at all," he was told.

A second teacher called to the stand today told J. Alan Baker, counsel for the school board, that he had given no thought to a transfer, but would prefer not to continue working under Mr. Vogee as principal.

NOT AS PRINCIPAL.

"I think highly of Mr. Vogee as a man and as a teacher," he said. "I would like to be associated with him in another capacity, but not with him as principal. I don't think he is capable as an administrator."

At Monday's sitting a third staff member said he was not prepared to continue teaching at Mount Newton if Mr. Vogee remained as principal.

Molar Inspection First Chore For New Kindergarten Kiddies

By PETE LOUDON

Greater Victoria's expected 1,700 new grade one and kindergarten pupils won't start classes until September but they'll go to school twice before then—once to register and once to see the dentist.

An expansion in school dentistry was announced by the school board today. A new $4,000 dental unit and x-ray unit has been set up at North Ward school and applications are being received for an additional dentist and dental assistant, both to work on a part-time basis starting in December.

There is a clinic now in the area and Dr. Hugh Clarke and Dr. David Parfitt circulate among them.

year and parents are invited to attend.

The dentists limit their work to examination except in some special cases and where emergency work is necessary, except in kindergarten and grade one where the board pays for treatment.

Usually though, parents are advised by card when cavities are noted. The dentists say in almost every case parents take the youngster then to a family dentist and have the necessary work carried out.

Doctors Clarke and Parfitt feel most of their work is educational and through the children hope to reach the parents. The home is the best place to fight tooth decay, they say, pointing out that in 87 per cent of the cases they see, decay is due to faulty diet.

The school dentists are so busy that this year's crop of new pupils will have their examinations delayed until July.

Every youngster in the schools from kindergarten to grade 12 has periodic examinations. Grades one, two and three get checked twice a

INVALID'S BODY FOUND

Eric Carlson, 63-year-old invalid missing from his home at Cayuse, Lake Cowichan, since Sunday morning, was found dead Monday afternoon about a mile from this logging centre on the south shore of Cowichan lake.

Mr. Carlson, a widower, had been despondent for the past week, according to RCMP. He was the object of a search by close to 60 men.

Strike Vote Delayed by City Plumbers

A strike vote will be called among most of B.C.'s 1,300 plumbers following rejection by the Vancouver local of the plumbers' union of a conciliation report offering 20 cents an hour wage hike.

Victoria plumbers, who belong to a separate local, are still in negotiation and are hopeful of peaceful settlement.

Vancouver local, which bargains for most of the province, asked a 25 per cent wage increase which would raise pay from $2.35 an hour to $2.94.

The conciliation report offered only an increase without fringe benefits of allowance for statutory holidays, special foreman's rate and tightening travel boundary jurisdiction.

Victoria plumbers have held two meetings with the local branch of National Association of Master Plumbers and are considering an undisclosed offer.

A spokesman for the union said it is the eventual aim of plumbers to arrive at a uniform rate in the province, but the Victoria demand was not as high as that asked in Vancouver.

POLE IN PLACE BY JULY 1

2 Days Left to Purchase Shares in Tallest Totem

There are just 48 hours remaining in which charter shareholders in the world's tallest totem project can have their names inscribed on the honor scroll which will be buried at the bottom of the pole.

Transcription of the charter list will start Friday, June 1, and all shareholders of record at that date will be included on the scroll.

A final meeting of consulting experts on the erection of the pole will be held Thursday. Plan is to have the pole in place by Dominion Day—July 1.

Reve Wurtele said he felt police chiefs from Victoria, Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt should meet under chairmanship of city chief John Blackstock to give the matter further study and make recommendations.

At present the city holds police training classes periodically and though other district officers have been invited, pressure of duty has meant many officers have only received on-the-job training.

Police School Plan Revived By Wurtele

New efforts to set up a greater Victoria police training school will be undertaken soon.

Victoria police commission received a letter from Esquimalt reeve A. C. Wurtele requesting that discussions conducted by district police commissions in 1955 be revived.

The city commission will advise Esquimalt commission it is willing to go further into the matter.

Croix de Guerre Winner Dies Here

Winner of the Croix de Guerre in the First World War, Patrick James Brian O'Neill, a resident of Victoria for the past 30 years, died Sunday in St. Joseph's Hospital.

Mr. O'Neill, 58, was a member of duty as the Frontiersmen, and the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association.

Speeding, Vandalism On Yates Face Crackdown

A police clamp-down on rowdiness and "speedway" driving on Yates Street was promised following complaints to a city police commission meeting today.

City lawyer, J. G. McIntosh, appeared on behalf of the 700-Block Yates Association. He said rowdiness and vandalism during evenings on Yates between Blanshard and Douglas was at a point where merchants were willing to co-operate with police.

Fear of reprisals had made some merchants reluctant to file complaints, he said.

MORE POLICE

The group asked extra police be assigned to the area.

Commissioner William Hamilton told reporters after the meeting special steps will be taken and the patrol on Yates will be doubled if necessary.

Chief trouble occurs from gangs of youths in their late teens and early 20s who gather before store doorways passing remarks at passersby and carrying on running repartees with others across the street, or with groups who cruise up and down in cars. The association did not specifically list incidents of vandalism.

"Yates Street is like a speedway, drivers are defying police. I would like to see a campaign to clean it up," said Commissioner Gordon Carter.

Chief John Blackstock blamed most of the noise on "smitty" mufflers, on cars with noisy contrivances on tail pipes and on cars with no mufflers.

(There were six convictions for inadequate mufflers last month in the downtown area.)

CURB THEM.

"There is an element which hangs around that street which should be curbed," agreed Mayor Percy Scarrath.

Chief Blackstock felt some Yates Street restaurant owners "... brought this thing on themselves. They encourage them to come in."

The commission will ask proprietors to phone police at the first sign of trouble.

Commissioner Hamilton indicated the order to officers will be to keep the rowdy elements moving.

"They can't make trouble unless they loiter."

Friday and Saturday nights were labeled the worst time of the week.

Q. What species of fish in B.C. waters has been called the candle fish? J.L.

A. The oolichan, a small smelt-like fish which in the spring, runs from the sea into the rivers in immense numbers. Its flesh is characterized by an excessive fatness and it was this which earned the name of candle fish, the oil content being so great that when the body was dried and a wick drawn through it was said it might be used as a candle.

Q. I would like to apply for a patent on a very good device. How may I go about it? A.E.S.

A. The commissioner of patents, Ottawa, receives all applications and has charge of all records. If a person wishes advice he will find cards of patent attorneys with experience under the Patent Act in the Canadian Almanac, 1956.

Swansdown in Pastels

By PENNY SAVER

Such elegance! It's worthy of the prettiest dressing table, and the most feminine of women. Swansdown in pastels—what could be more delicate and soft? Powder puffs for bath talcum come in a variety of sizes, and a wealth of pastels. Mauve, pink, yellow, blue, green and white masses of swansdown have knobs of flowers in matching colors. Hold the puff of luxury by the flowers. Packed in plastic gift boxes, they are $1.85, $2.55 and $4.50. Smaller ones, oh, so soft and whispery, are 65, 75, 89 cents, $1.50, and there's even a purse sized puff for makeup, at 25 cents. One lovely one has an attached floral chiffon scarf that tucks daintily around the puff, keeping it fresh and clean when not being used.

On a plastic brush handle painted with pink posies is a large round of down, priced at $2.55. A special gift for a bride is the white or blue powder puff on a satin-bow long handle. A satin bow and frosted flowers decorates the top. This one is also $2.55. Imported from England, they're reappearing and being well received by women who enjoy owning feminine accessories.

Did you know that there are such people as soap collectors? I discovered it recently when I found, inside a box of novelty soap, a note for soap collectors, informing them of the wide selection of carved soaps.

A part of the selection I found on the same counter, and before I had moved on I was almost numbered among said collectors. Such saucy faces on the animals, and clever ideas shown in the novelty items are very tempting. Three were pink piglets with pink blossoms hand painted on their backs are $1.50. Three kittens, poodles or bears are the same price. An indigestible hamburger that looks real enough to warrant a large bite, or a hot dog with the same real-like look costs $1.50. The same price is a cob of bright yellow corn.

For those of you who are going to travel, no matter how far, this summer, the box of on-the-go soap will solve washing problems. Squares of sweet-smelling soap can be used to wash lingerie or you. Just wet the soap squares and in no time at all there will be fragrant, soft suds to do the job. A box of 48 squares is $1.50.

Don't make extra work for yourself by hunting through town for the items mentioned. Do it the easy way, and call me at 2-3131. I'll gladly tell you the names of the stores where I have found items mentioned in the column.

IODE Members Spent 2,080 Hours
Last Year Welcoming Immigrants

QUEBEC (CP)—Members of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire last year put in a busy time helping immigrants landing at Canadian ports. In addition to welcoming the newcomers they distributed coffee, milk and biscuits.

Mrs. G. L. Hamilton of Windsor, Ont., national immigration and Canadianization convener, told the IODE annual meeting Tuesday that members last year spent 2,080 hours working at the docks. They handed out 1,204 pounds of biscuits, served 65,000 cups of coffee and 25,280 glasses of milk.

"Members did outstanding work at the country's busiest immigrant port, Quebec," said Mrs. Hamilton.

Chapters in every province contributed to the work by making scrap books from used Christmas cards to give to immigrant children. Members co-operated in the activities of citizenship committees and held conversational English classes. Many also acted as baby sitters to permit mothers to attend language classes.

"These classes provide the newcomer with an opportunity to practice English and meet old Canadians in an informal atmosphere," said Mrs. Hamilton.

IODE immigrant work included visiting new Canadian patients in hospitals, she said.

WORK INCREASING

Mrs. Hamilton said the work of presenting greeting cards to new citizens was going to be increasingly heavy for the next few years, following the peak which has been reached in immigrants since the Second World War. More than 18,000 cards were issued last year.

In the national Commonwealth relations report, Mrs. C. M. Scott of Peterborough, Ont., said that $3,697 was paid in grants to two Indian and one Pakistani nursing and medical students, who came here to take courses.

In February this year, four bursaries of $150 each were awarded

TO BANFF — Mrs. Mary Groszek, president, Canadian Dental Nurses and Assistants Association, will travel to Banff Friday, to preside at the Canadian Dental Nurses and Assistants Association Convention at Banff Springs Hotel. Other Victorians travelling to the convention are Miss Elsie Mae MacDonald, president, British Columbia Dental Assistants Association; Miss Jean MacGregor and Mrs. Gail Fultop.

It's fashionable to wear white linen sheath frocks, given an expensive look by beautiful open-work embroidery.

Delegates—Mrs. E. Mossop was appointed official delegate to the provincial women's institute conference in Vancouver; and Mrs. E. Emery was appointed alternate, at the regular meeting of the Colwood Women's Institute. Report on the spring tea showed that $200 had been realized, which will go towards the work of the institute and the WI building fund to provide larger quarters for meetings. Plans were also discussed for the country fair to be held in September in Colwood Hall.

Panel on 'Assimilation' Agrees
Canadians Must Help Immigrants

Members of the Local Council of Women heard an informative panel discussion on "The Assimilation of Newcomers to Canada," yesterday, in the Music Room of the Public Library.

First speaker, lawyer, Forrest L. Shaw, told the meeting, "I think we should consider why we are encouraging immigration. At the end of the war, we had to find some way to develop our natural resources. With the large expanse of unpopulated areas in Canada it was our duty to encourage people to come from over-congested parts of the world. It was our duty to help them better their standards of living."

"Our biggest error was letting large numbers of non-English speaking people from one country live together in one area. In some places there are now three generations of these people, and none speak English," said Mr. Shaw.

"Canada has not agreed to non-restricted immigration. I think we should retain the right to select people to share our heritage," he concluded.

Dr. Edith Lucas, director of high school correspondence, department of education, felt that language was the greatest problem met by the immigrant.

"Without being able to speak the language correctly, he cannot feel adequate in his new country," she said.

"It is the language which prevents the immigrant from taking up the same work he held in his own country. He is pushed into jobs which require no skill, until he can overcome this obstacle."

Dr. Lucas stressed that the community must provide means for the immigrant to improve his English, as "skill in English is the first step to adjustment."

"The main factor of assimilation is happiness," said Mrs. Paul Bisseley, secretary of the Greater Victoria Citizenship Council.

"It is easier for the husband and children to adjust than it is for the woman," she said. "At work and school the husband and children are constantly mixing with Canadians, learning the language and ways of the country. But the woman has less opportunity to mix. She must rely on her neighbors for her assimilation. I feel that women's organizations should do more to encourage immigrant women to join them and adjust."

John Dorman, retired inspector-in-chief, Department of Immigration, said:

"Not all Canadians want immigrants. However, we must remember that these people were brought here with the blessing of our government. Therefore, if we have any complaints, they should be directed against the government, and not the immigrants."

"Having brought immigrants here we must do something for them. I think churches and parent-teacher groups should encourage them to join their ranks, but the greatest contribution should come from the individual."

Mrs. E. E. Livesey was chairman for the panel discussion and president, Mrs. Lillian Johns, conducted the meeting.

Treasurer, Mrs. N. Mortimer, announced that proceeds from the coffee party were $30.10. Mrs. A. J. Butterfield reported on the world calendar. It was decided that Mrs. A. J. Tullis should represent the council at the Senior Citizens' Campaign Council. The sum of $75 was voted towards sending Mrs. Johns as a delegate to the National Council Convention in Kingston, Ont.

'I Was in Love... Totally, Helplessly'

One day, as Corinne and I were sitting on the porch, I saw Henry Mustin rounding the corner, deep in conversation with a young officer and followed closely by two more. As they drew closer my eyes came to rest on the officer directly behind Captain Mustin.

He was laughing, yet there was a suggestion of inner force and vitality that struck me. His close-cropped guard's moustache gave an arresting boldness to his features.

A moment later they were on the porch and Henry Mustin was saying: "I want you to meet Lieutenant Spencer."

The talk at lunch was mostly about flying, and I was fascinated. Lieutenant Spencer's gaiety and sense of fun were continually in play, though a certain undertone of sarcasm hinted at harsher forces working beneath the surface.

The eyes were surprisingly intense and bright and quick to flash in response to a quip. Above all, I gained an impression of resolution and courage.

Nashua, Seven Others Enter Metropolitan

NEW YORK (UP)—Nashua, the million dollar race horse, drew seven opponents today when the entry box closed for Wednesday's running of the $50,000 added Metropolitan handicap.

Joe Jones, Find, Jet Action, Switch On, Midafternoon, Artismo and Mr. Turf were named to run against the turf millionaire in the one mile race in which Nashua carries 130 pounds for the first time in his brilliant career.

The husky son of Nasrullah who became the leading money-winning thoroughbred in history with total earnings of $1,100,365 when he won the Camden handicap May 29, conceded the chunks of weight to the others. Closest to Nashua, who earned $945,415 for the Belair stud before he was sold to a syndicate headed by Leslie B. Combs II, for $1,251,200, is Find with 116 pounds.

In the Camden Find, owned by Alfred G. Vanderbilt, carried 120 pounds to second place behind Nashua who shouldered 129 pounds that day. Thus Find drops four pounds from that race while Nashua picks up one.

At 115 pounds were Joe Jones and Jet Action, while Switch On gets in at 113, Midafternoon at 111, Artismo at 110, and Mr. Turf at only 105. Eddie Arcaro again rides Nashua who has earned $154,950 for his new owners. The big bay colt drew the outside post position.

No City Manager for Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP)—Council today rejected by a 6-1 vote a plan to appoint a city manager for Vancouver.

Aldermen appeared to be in favor of a plan proposed by finance committee chairman Jack Cornett that a four-man board of administration be appointed. The city manager plan had been recommended recently in a $25,000 efficiency survey by a United States consultant.

Jets Collide in Manitoba; 3 Dead

WINNIPEG (CP)—Two RCAF T-33 jets collided in the air over the Netley marshes at the south end of Lake Winnipeg today killing three airmen.

Rescuers recovered two bodies from the wreckage of the planes which dropped into the marshes about 38 miles north of Winnipeg. A third body was recovered later.

The RCAF jets, which were returning to the air force base at Gimli, Man., from a routine training flight, carried an instructor and two NATO students.

Commons Queries on Frogman Gagged

LONDON (AP)—The Speaker of the House of Commons today refused to allow any more questions in Parliament about the British frogman who vanished mysteriously in Portsmouth Harbor last month when visiting Russian warships were anchored there.

Today, Labor Party member John Dugdale tried to ask another question but Speaker William Morrison said the effort was a waste of time. He ruled that a question already asked in the course of a session may not be put again.

Red Leaders Would Visit N. America

LONDON (CP)—The Daily Mail says in a New York dispatch that Russia's Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin are planning to make an official visit to Canada.

The dispatch says the Russian leaders are "known to be anxious" to visit the United States, and implies that an official visit to Canada, which would be covered by American newspapers, radio and television, would be a suitable opening gambit. The U.S. is thought to be reluctant to extend an invitation at this time.

OTTAWA (CP)—The external affairs department said today the government is not considering inviting Russia's Nikita Khrushchev and Premier Bulganin to visit Canada at this time.

An official also said the government has received no suggestion that the Russians are planning a trip to Canada.

IS THIS WHERE HE GOT GUN?

Hold-up "victim" Bob Gillett stands with target pistol of type held on him by odd stick-up man Monday night. Gillett and girl friend, Margaret Ross, visit broken sporting goods store window from which smash-and-grab artist stole revolvers. Gunman seemed familiar with weapon, Gillett said.

HOW HOT IS HOT ENOUGH?

Victoria residents will be permitted to ask the age-old question "is it hot enough for you?" today and Wednesday, according to the official forecast.

On Gonzales Hill, the temperature is expected to reach 75 or better. On downtown pavements, radiation will raise the mercury above 80.

Convict Flees From Oakalla

BURNABY (UP)—A 26-year-old convict, worried about his wife, who is expecting a baby soon, fled from a work gang at Oakalla prison farm, Burnaby, today.

Jail officials identified the escapee as George Perovich, who was serving two years less one day for breaking and entering and a concurrent term of one year for possession of narcotics.

Perovich was with a gang of 15 other men under one guard clearing land outside the fenced prison grounds. He fled into the bush, but the guard did not fire, because "he is not dangerous," said a prison official.

Saanich Couple Held at Gun-Point

A city soft drink salesman and his girl friend were held at gun-point early this morning by a strangely acting, unshaven man who may have been responsible for an earlier theft of four weapons from a Broad Street sporting goods store.

Victims of the weird incident were Bob Gillett, 22, 143 Medina, and Margaret Ross, 18, 3811 Cedar Hill Road.

They were sitting in a car outside Miss Ross' home when the gun-wielding took place.

The gunman asked for nothing, took nothing and finally drove away in a small car thought to have been of English make.

Earlier, about 12:25 a.m., someone smashed a plate glass window at Robinson's Sporting Goods, 1307 Broad, and stole a French automatic pistol and two .22 calibre revolvers, and possibly a rifle.

The break-in occurred at 12:25 a.m.

Two Men Seen Driving Off

Mrs. Margaret Gibbins, dispatcher at Island Taxi, 1312 Broad, who was in her office at the time of the break-in, said she saw a small English-made car drive away with two men in it.

"I tried to get their licence number but I couldn't," she said.

A pistol of the type stolen was identified as being similar to the one used by the gunman.

Around 7 a.m. police discovered a plate glass show window smashed at Roger Monteith's Fishing Goods, 618 Fort. Mr. Monteith said nothing was stolen.

Gillett said the gunman "didn't look quite right in his eyes."

"He told me to freeze, and I froze naturally."

He and Miss Ross had just driven up to the latter's home and were sitting in the car when they noticed a small car approaching from the rear drive past and stop less than 100 yards ahead of Gillett's car.

He said he noticed it particularly because he saw the red stop lights go on, then go out as the car pulled ahead a few feet more so that it appeared parked outside the next address.

He Turned His Lights Out

"Then he turned his lights out, and it was quite a spell before he got out. He seemed undecided where he was parking. That's the first thing I noticed," Gillett recalled.

The driver had a flashlight which he shone on the ground as he stepped out of the car.

"This man walked toward us and I got out of the car to see what he wanted. He pulled a pistol out of his belt and pointed it toward us."

"He told me to freeze."

"I thought he was going to strip the car because he walked toward it. He had the flashlight in my eyes all the time."

"Margaret said he never took his eyes off me. I don't know whether he saw her or not."

Could Identify Man and Gun

Both had a good look at the heavy-set man. A street light illuminated his features and the gun he held. The couple said they could identify the man and the gun if they saw them again.

"He asked me my name and I told him. I was afraid he would ask me for money. I only had two cents. That's why I was afraid."

"He went over to the door of the car and stood a minute, still looking at me and pointing the gun. Margaret was in the driver's seat and she was closer to him than I was."

"I was never so scared," she confessed.

"Then he said, 'Get back in the car and carry on.' I got in and after a short time he went back to his car and drove off," Gillett went on.

"He turned right on Ruby and went down towards Shelbourne. I made sure he was gone and phoned Saanich police."

Gillett said the hold-up man seemed to be eccentric. He didn't look right in his eyes—like he didn't know whether to pull the trigger or not."

TWO LIGHTERS NEEDED TO AMMUNITION SHIPS

OTTAWA (CP)—Bad weather on six occasions during the last six months has forced suspension of ammunition loading or unloading at the Rocky Point naval magazine at Esquimalt, the defence department says in a Commons return.

In reply to questions by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, VC (PC, Esquimalt-Saanich), the department said two lighters are used to load or unload ammunition from the four types of naval vessels which use the magazine. The ships do not load directly from the Rocky Point jetty, built at a cost of $234,421. The jetty is 216 feet long and 50 feet wide.

The return adds that the lighters cannot remain at Rocky Point in all weather. It is eight miles by sea between Rocky Point and Esquimalt.

... DUCHESS

I felt here was a man you could rely upon.

After lunch, while the other guests were leaving, he returned to where I was standing to say that, if I didn't mind, he would like to call the next afternoon. The request momentarily took me aback.

"That sounds very amusing," I answered hastily, "but I don't know what the Mustins have planned for me."

"Oh, don't worry about that," was the self-assured answer. "I really don't care what the Mustins have planned for you so long as the plans include me."

Then he was gone. I felt excited and moved as I had never been before. Here was a kind of man new to me, strong, assured, sophisticated—one who knew what he wanted and was confident of his ability to get it.

The following day he came back to dine. By the end of the evening I knew I was in love completely, totally, helplessly.

Earl Winfield Spencer was 26 when we fell in love. He was a senior instructor and a key man in the naval air program, then just beginning to feel the quickening influence of the approach of war.

The more I saw of him the more certain I was that this was the real thing.

Sometimes doubts did assail me, and I tried to put on the brakes. But it was no use.

Then one evening Win led me on to the country club porch and asked me to marry him.

In the course of the next fortnight I came to know, if not everything about Win, at least a great deal. Deeply imbedded in his nature, under the surface layer of gaiety, was a strange brooding quality that verged on bitterness and even cynicism: a word or gesture could change his manner in a flash.

The laughter that crinkled the lines around his dark eyes would be gone as if it had been drawn across his mind; he would become silent and morose. These strange and sometimes bewildering alternations of mood fascinated me even more than his undoubted good looks.

Lost in the perfume of the oleanders and azaleas, I was too inexperienced to realize that the shut-in, bitter side of Win Spencer's nature was the stronger side; that even then he was struggling to hold it in check.

In the years to come it would gain the ascendancy and destroy him and also the life we tried to make together.

Little though I suspected it, then, his was to prove to be an even more ill-starred family than the Montagues.

In less than a year one brother was killed while fighting in France; the other brother was to die in a riding accident, and Win's mother was to be killed in a car accident.

As for Win himself, he endured a succession of personal tragedies in his later life. He married four times, and died in 1950 at the age of 61.

Our wedding took place on

Nov. 8, 1916, in the church at Baltimore in which I had been confirmed.

We drove to Washington with Cousin Lella Barnett after the ceremony. She deposited us at the hotel in characteristic Montague style.

"It seems all wrong," she said, "to leave you here with this strange man."

From Washington we went to White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia.

Here, in the hotel soon after we arrived, an odd incident occurred about which I had good reason to reflect upon later.

Win and I had gone to our room to change for dinner. While he was dealing with the luggage, I went to the window.

An instant later I was turned around by an explosive nautical oath. Win was stooped over the dressing table, peering at something under the glass top.

"Imagine something like this happening to a man on his honeymoon," he chuckled.

I went over to see what he had read. It was a printed hotel notice stating that West Virginia was a dry state and therefore no alcoholic beverages could be sold on the premises.

"That's hospitality for you," said Win. "We certainly can't stay here."

Although he was joking, his irritation was authentic. Win flung open one of the suitcases. From under the shirts he produced a bottle of gin. "Just enough left," he said with relief, "to get up flying speed until I can locate a local source of supply."

It may sound odd, but at 20 I had yet to have my first drink of anything alcoholic.

I was to become aware, before our brief honeymoon was finished, that the bottle was seldom far from my husband's thoughts or his hand.

But because no unpleasant effects were in evidence, I rationalized his thirst away on the theory—ill founded, as matters turned out—that a flier was entitled to relaxation, especially on his honeymoon.

After a week we returned to Pensacola. I can still see Corinne Mustin running along beside the train before it stopped, waving and shouting, "Hi, Skinny!"

As a navy wife, I settled into a surprisingly easy if somewhat confined routine. In those days servants cost next to nothing and we were able to start with a cook and a maid for somewhere around $16 a month in all.

This was a great boon to me as Win took all his meals at home, and I had never previously even boiled an egg.

Middle-of-Road Keeps Control In Italy Vote

ROME (AP)—Middle-of-the-road democracy remained the most powerful force in Italian local government today despite a late leftist surge which left the fascist-monarchist right with the balance of power in many divided town councils.

Even when the centre bloc or their bitter opponents on the far left had made the strongest local showing, due to the system of proportional representation, the smaller rightist groups could swing control either way in such cities as Rome, Genoa, Florence, Trieste, Bari, Venice, Leghorn and Siena.

Since the right feels far more kindly toward the centre than toward the left the bloc of divided monarchists and the Fascist Italian Social Movement was likely to work with the centre in most places. Thus the situation was less serious in fact than in theory.

Spokesman for Italy's middle-way government generally felt the two-day administrative elections had been as successful as the centre had expected.

Communist strength, while generally firm, turned spotty in some areas.

Both East and West are watching the returns closely, since this is the first major election in Western Europe since the Kremlin adopted its new policies of anti-Stalinism and co-existence.

The elections all are either for provincial or local councils. By totalling the vote and comparing it to past years, a picture of how Italy is moving politically is gained.

SOCREDS TO FIELD 34 IN N.B.

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—Bert R. Lebow, Social Credit member of Parliament for the British Columbia riding of Cariboo, said today his party expects to have 34 candidates in the field for the June 18 New Brunswick election.

Social Credit governments are in power in Alberta and British Columbia. The party holds 14 seats in the House of Commons.

New Brunswick will be the first Atlantic province in which Social Credit has entered enough election candidates to form government.

Fourteen have been nominated to date.

Full slates of 52 candidates have been nominated by Progressive Conservative and Liberal parties. The CCF is not expected to contest any ridings.

Conservatives won 36 of 52 seats in 1952. Liberals won 16. Nominations close June 4.

Court of Appeal To Test Validity Of New Milk Act

B.C. Court of Appeal has been asked to determine the validity of the new Milk Act passed at the last session of the legislature.

Government sources say the sections needing clarification are those dealing with equalization—a method by which all producers of the same quality milk can sell on the fluid market.

A form of equalization was attempted many years ago under a previous milk marketing act. After passage through Canadian courts, it was declared ultra vires of the B.C. legislature by the Privy Council in London.

SHARING

The new Milk Act, as it stands, involves the sharing of the milk market on a more even basis between producers. In doing so, it takes away a portion of one producer's established market to give more to another.

Earlier this month Liberal Leader Arthur Laing forecast that the act would have to be tested before a court. He said the government should have taken "clarifying action" before the act was proclaimed May 17.

A government spokesman said the court of appeal will be asked to rule whether the Milk Industry Act or any of its provisions is outside the jurisdiction of the B.C. Legislature.

AT GROUND LEVEL

Unique Turkey Shed Houses 2,000 Birds

LADYSMITH—A new turkey confinement shed designed and built by Ivan Wicklund of The Diamond, is attracting attention throughout B.C. because of several unique features in its design.

Planned to house 2,000 birds, the shed is 180 feet long and 34 feet wide, and is constructed almost entirely of timbers which Mr. Wicklund and one helper cut in the woods. Most of the timbers came off Mr. Wicklund's own property when he was clearing land for the new shed.

The principal difference in Mr. Wicklund's design from conventional confinement sheds used by other turkey growers is its location at ground level, where conventional types are built on stilts about seven feet in the air.

ROAD UNDER SHED

Purpose of the stilts is to permit a truck to be driven under the shed to haul away the manure. This purpose is accomplished in Mr. Wicklund's design by a road excavated under the shed.

Mr. Wicklund says the advantage of his design is that feed can be loaded directly from a truck into self-feeders on the sides of the shed.

Watering of the birds will be automatic and the feed hoppers will have to be refilled only twice a month, requiring 14 tons of feed at each filling.

Mr. Wicklund raises about 6,000 birds a year and has not kept them in complete confinement up to this time. He estimates that the new confinement shed will reduce by 50 per cent the labor required to raise the 2,000 birds.

If the new shed lives up to his expectations, he plans on building another this year. He started the first in February, and hopes to have it filled with birds in a week or two.

MUST RUN

Hens will be kept in the shed until they reach market weight.

MARKS CENTENARY

The first co-operative dairy plant in Northern Europe was founded in 1856 at Ralsjodalen in Norway.

but male birds must run on the ground for the last three months because they become too heavy to remain on the slatted floor of the shed.

Mr. Wicklund estimates the new shed will reduce the time required to bring a bird to market weight by about three weeks. Birds are placed in the shed at six weeks of age.

One of the larger turkey growers on Vancouver Island, Mr. Wicklund also operates a hatchery with a capacity of 20,000 eggs and sells eggs and poulters.

FEW BOY SCOUT GUESTS OF CANADA

at the 1955 Jamboree had a chance to see the great dams and smelters that make Canada a world supplier of aluminum.

But some did see a Canadian use of the light metal: outdoor cooking with aluminum foil. One Canadian troop showed how they used the handy material for doing potatoes, steaks and other foods over the campfire; how they kept food fresh in summer heat by protecting it with aluminum. If this missionary work carries the idea back to distant lands, Canada may have to turn out still more aluminum foil—even though last year her output, if laid in a 12-inch strip, would reach 382,000 miles.

Japan Fears National Panic From Radioactivity Neurosis

TOKYO (Reuters)—The national newspaper Asahi says the Japanese people have developed a "radioactivity neurosis" following an unconfirmed report that the United States exploded another hydrogen bomb in the Pacific Sunday.

Many local health officers issued public statements warning that panic could result in mental breakdowns. Store owners reported they are nearly sold out of raincoats and umbrellas.

A Tokyo observatory spokesman stuck to his guns today, saying that the U.S. definitely tested a hydrogen weapon at Bikini atoll May 27. Despite American silence on the matter, weather data indicated an explosion had taken place, he said. The last officially reported test was May 21.

Asahi says that, contrary to local expectations, no tangible fall-out from the May 21 test has been noted in Japan.

GOLD-PLATED TV HOAX

Lady Docker Richly Keeps Her Secret

LONDON (Reuters)—Lady Norah Docker, the average Briton's idea of gold-plated wealth, pulled an audacious hoax on Monday night on Mayfair society and millions of television viewers.

The blonde, vivacious wife of millionaire Sir Bernard Docker appeared as dazzling as ever on a TV panel game.

The secret: Her earrings and bracelets setting off a blue lace gown. Members of the panel game, I've Got a Secret, failed to guess her ladyship's secret. Nor did scores of acquaintances at some of the night clubs she visited after her TV appearance.

The secret: Her earrings and bracelets were glass, her necklace chorkme and her lace dress off the peg of a low-price dress shop. The total ensemble cost exactly £11 4s 6d.

Former Beria Stooges Executed for Treason

MOSCOW (AP)—The former prime minister of Azerbaijan and three other top officials of that Caucasian Republic have been executed for treason and counter-revolutionary activity.

They were accused of being accomplices of former Soviet police boss Lavrenti Beria.

The newspaper Baku Worker, which reached Moscow today, said they had been charged with "terroristic acts."

The chief defendant in the trial, which the newspaper said was held publicly in Baku between April 12 and April 26, was identified as M. D. Bagirov, former secretary of the Communist party in that area and the chairman of the council of ministers August, 1953, a month after Beria was purged. He had been secretary of the Communist Party since 1947.

The other three men who were executed were M. D. Bakhchev, H. I. Grigoryan and R. A. Markaryan.

The two who were imprisoned were S. S. Ibragimovich, a former vice commissar of state security, and S. Emelyanov, a former people's commissar for state security in Azerbaijan.

The indictment said he and his accomplices were guilty of treason, of using improper methods of police investigation,

SYMPHONY ASKS SUPPORT AT DUNCAN

DUNCAN—Mozart festival orchestra of the Victoria Symphony Society will stage concerts in Cowichan High School auditorium here Wednesday and Friday nights, starting at 8.30 p.m.

At least seven soloists will appear in the two-concert series, according to Hans Gruber, conductor.

Tickets for adults and students will be sold both for single concerts and for the series. Mr. Gruber said, though, that the concerts might be cancelled at short notice if ticket sales do not meet costs of staging the concerts.

Advance sale must be of 350 adult series tickets or their financial equivalent, he said.

Soloists for the series will be Gertrude Huntly Green, Carol McCartney, Maurice Crawford, Hans Stelmeyer, Clifford Evans, Harry Gomez and Stanley McCarty.

High School Roisterer Fined $15

NANAIMO—A South Burnaby High School student who was arrested here Saturday night for creating a disturbance was fined $10 and $5 costs here Monday by Magistrate Chris Wright.

Sgt. William Currie told the court he thought the young man had been sufficiently penalized.

The youth, Charles Gross, said he had come to Nanaimo with other graduating students.

"We had a conga line around town. I was on my way back to the ship when I was picked up," he said.

OTTAWA (CP)—The Russian embassy said Monday it has made arrangements to assist Canadian tourists to visit the U.S.S.R. It announced in the Soviet news bulletin that a special agreement has been made by the Russian tourist organization Intourist authorizing Overseas Travel Ltd. of Toronto to sell in Canada special tourist passes for travel in the U.S.S.R.

Feeding a multitude...

No "loaf"-ing on this job... GMC really delivers the goods!

Pictured above is just one more example of the tremendous appeal GMC trucks have for serious, profit-conscious Canadian companies faced with trucking problems. For a volume-market operation, involving store-to-store delivery throughout the City of Toronto, Sunbeam Bakeries chose a fleet of 100 agile but rugged GMC forward control trucks. Delivering the daily bread for thousands upon thousands of families is a job that calls for dependability the whole year 'round—that's where GMC shines and Sunbeam knows it.

Perhaps you have a door-to-door problem... or maybe it's city-to-city... or coast-to-coast. Whatever the distance, whatever the job, there's a GMC you can count on to do it the way you want it done—quickly, efficiently, dependably and economically.

Why not see your GMC dealer today and get all the facts. We think you'll be agreeably surprised.

FAST, EASY DELIVERY ...with GMC Forward Control Trucks

Door-to-door, store-to-store, in crowded traffic conditions you can make time every time with GMC Forward Control Trucks. You get easy curbside loading. You get easy access in and out of the cab. And you get double the carrying capacity on a truck that practically turns on a dime. Net result... more deliveries and, best of all, low cost deliveries!

Science Shrinks Piles New Way Without Surgery

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—
Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain. Thousands have been relieved—without resort to surgery.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such astonishing statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous scientific institute.

Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use in the healing of hemorrhoids on all parts of the body.

TRAFFIC DEATHS UP 58% OVER LAST YEAR

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney-General Robert Bonner urged British Columbia magistrates Monday to seek some uniformity in handling of traffic delinquents.

Speaking at a conference of magistrates, he said that traffic deaths in B.C. have jumped 58 per cent in the first quarter of the year compared with the same period last year.

He urged magistrates to discuss the situation.

U.K. AIR VETERAN HERE

You Took Off by Yourself When He Learned to Fly

The 82nd man in England to hold a Royal Aero Club flying licence, Group Captain W. H. Dolphin, RAF (ret.) is a visitor in Victoria from his home at Hove, England.

Group Captain Dolphin learned to fly in the days when your first solo was also your first flight. He picked up his flying knowledge in a single-place monoplane; therefore no instructor could accompany him on his first airborne trip.

"You taxied up and down the air strip until you felt confident enough to take off; then you were a flyer," he explains.

Forest Probe Seen Resuming By June 11

The Sloan Royal Commission on forestry has been tentatively adjourned until June 11 for final evidence.

"Resumption of inquiry on that date depends on whether the evidence required is available," a commission spokesman said today.

Hearing of this evidence, which has to do with forest management finances, is expected to last only one day after which the commission will adjourn until June 18 for legal argument lasting a week or more.

35 VOLUMES
The final report by Chief Justice Sloan is not expected until September or October, as the chief justice will have to review some 35 bound volumes of evidence containing 18,000 pages of typescript. The hearings adjourned last week with concluding evidence by Dr. C. D. Orchard, chief B.C. government forester, who told the commission he had no knowledge of a "huge conspiracy" to wreck forest legislation in B.C.

His statement was in contradiction to that of his former minister, R. F. Sommers, who resigned his cabinet post.

DICK POMEROY

Eighteen-year-old Richard J. Pomeroy of Victoria College has been named Gyro Club scholar.

The Gyro award of $200 is for scholarship, leadership and ability in sports.

Club members approved the college recommendation Monday. Young Pomeroy last year won the $150 Horace Heidt scholarship at Victoria High where he was president of the students' council.

He lives here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Pomeroy, at 2526 Scott.

8,000 Ottawans Attend Anglican Celebrations
OTTAWA (CP)—Approximately 8,000 persons, including six bishops, attended diocesan jubilee celebrations of the Anglican diocese of Ottawa at the auditorium here Sunday night.

Principal speaker at the rally—described by organizers as the largest Anglican rally in the capital during the last quarter century—was Right Rev. Josée de Blank, suffragan bishop of Stepey, London.

Urging his audience to be more militant Christians, the British bishop said: "Some Christians are living as chickens when they ought to be eagles."

Church dignitaries present included Rt. Rev. G. A. Wells, retired former bishop of Cariboo, B. C.

Newspapers Essential in War, Says Monty

WINNIPEG (CP)—Establishment of a plan by leading newspapers for emergency production of newspapers in nuclear war was advocated by Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery, deputy supreme commander allied forces in Europe.

At a press conference at the Winnipeg Press Club during a two-day visit to Winnipeg, Lord Montgomery said the government should ask the newspapers to have such a plan.

"If the people can be spoken to by their leaders, if they can have newspapers, it will keep up morale," he said. "They must have newspapers."

Leaders on the battlefield needed to know that the home front was not cracking.

Assurance to the people from national leaders that the situation was in hand was a primary need. He said there also should be international arrangements for one country to take over radio broadcasting for another when its own broadcasting was knocked out.

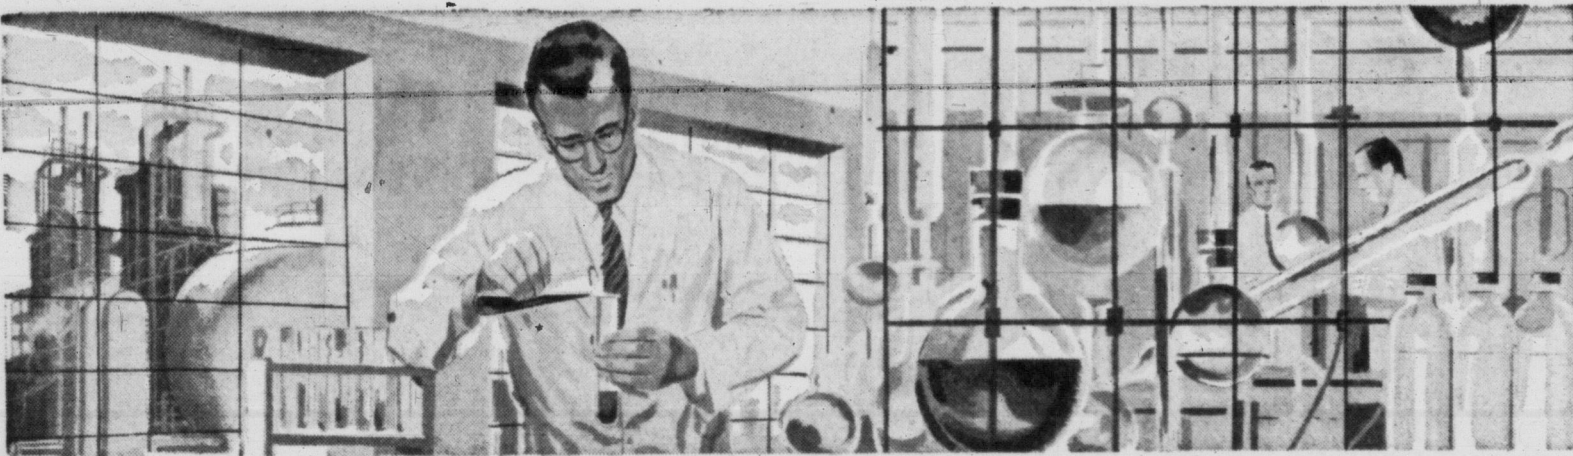

In Europe, civil defence planning should urge people to stay where they are.

"You can't control people when they are running about the country," he said. "You can't speak to them."

He qualified earlier statements on civil defence that evacuation of cities during nuclear war would be impossible, saying that Canada was in a different category. The country was enormous, un congested.
